Pupils have collected food donations to support people in need.

During Harvest Week, children at Bradley Primary School in Nelson gathered non-perishable items for Curry On The Streets.

The food bank chosen by the school's R.E. Ambassadors and School Council.

In a statement, the school said: "We are incredibly proud of our pupils for showing such empathy and initiative.

"Their commitment to helping others truly embodies the values we strive to instil every day at our school."

The idea for the collection came from a meeting between the R.E. Ambassadors and School Council, who wanted to give back to the community.

After a discussion, they decided to support Curry On The Streets.

Families and staff contributed to the effort, donating a range of food items.

The school added: "This Harvest Week has not only been a celebration of gratitude but also a powerful reminder."
