

Pine Class News

This week has been very busy with both Safer Internet Day and Valentines Day to explore. However we have still had lots of fun crafting, baking, getting out and about and learning new language and skills.

Our sensory play sessions have been amazing this week we have loved exploring the different props and messy play options and just love our sensory stories.

Our baking skills are coming along with lots of weighing, measuring, mixing and cutting with our tools. We have been great helpers in cookery this week and have continued to help with the cleaning up too!

Our walks out in the community have been fab this week - we have all been working hard to listen to staff and follow directions. We have been excited to see the different changes happening around us and have noticed the ducks on the pond and new spring flowers beginning to bloom.

PE sessions have been fun this week. We have used our communication tools to request different actions and have been working hard to learn new physical skills like climbing and throwing a ball at a target. Some of us have been working hard to get dressed more independently and have been very pleased with ourselves when we know we have got it right 😊

We loved decorating our Valentines biscuits and our attention autism sessions and have been using our communication tools with ease. There has been some fantastic progress with PECS this week. Lots of independent requesting and engagement with staff which we are all so proud of!

Hope you have a lovely weekend!!
