Curriculum Recovery in History

In producing this recovery curriculum for 2021-22, the Department of History has paid particular attention to ensuring that the overarching principles of curriculum construction in humanities are in place. For example, ensuring the sequencing and overarching narrative of the curriculum is not compromised, as progression in history is rooted within this emerging narrative. In particular, the department has prioritised content that allows students to make sense of and contextualise later work within the curriculum. For example, in Year 8, students will focus on the learning question: "How did democracy develop in Britain before 1800?" This will allow for the introduction of some missed content, such as the belief in the Divine Right of Kings during the Stuart Period, as well as a review and consolidation of early developments in democracy, such as the creation of the Magna Carta. Curriculum content will continue to be sequenced carefully to ensure that students are able to locate knowledge within the broader chronological framework that they are developing.

In order to ensure progression in history, the Department of History recognises the potential decline in the development of the disciplinary knowledge of students in history. As a result, this will be a priority area of focus to ensure that students continue to develop knowledge of how historians study the past and construct historical narratives and interpretations. This will include a focus on key concepts such as change and continuity, cause and consequence, significance, similarity and difference and the use of evidence.

Please note: The first four lessons of the Year 8 curriculum would normally be delivered as outlined in the grid below. The curriculum overview has been tailored to the needs of our students. It has been produced in an attempt to mitigate any potential gaps in learning, in order to ensure that core knowledge and understanding is in place in preparation for further study in KS3, and, if applicable, in KS4. Adjustments have also been made to facilitate schema building and links between prior and future learning, to allow students to know more and remember more.

What is othering?	Was the Columbian Exchange an "exchange"?
Why is the concept of the "New World" problematic?	End of Enquiry Assessment, Feedback & DIRT

Due to some resequencing and adjustment within the curriculum, the Year 9 cohort of students will have already studied the American Civil Rights Movement. As such, further planning to ensure curriculum recovery has taken place, with an especial focus on the development of disciplinary knowledge, will be required.
