

World Book Day 2019

It's World Book Day on Thursday March 7th so we would like to invite the children to dress up as characters from their favourite books. We will have a dressing up parade and there will be a prize for the most imaginative costume from each key stage.

We will also have a book swap, where children can bring in a book that they have finished with to swap with others. These have always been a great success in the past and enable the children to choose from a wealth of pre-loved books. Please send any good quality books that you'd like to donate on the 7th March.

We would also like to invite any parents, friends or family, who write for pleasure or for work, to come to talk to the children about their writing (fiction or non-fiction). If you know of someone who fits the bill, please let us know as soon as possible.

As usual, we would also like to invite parents, grandparents and members of the community to come into school to read and share their favourite children's literature with groups of children throughout the week. Please let your child's teacher know if you would like to do this or have any other ideas how you would like to get involved.

We ask for a voluntary contribution of £2, to include Mufti-day, the book-swap and a donation to Book Aid International, a charity devoted to providing access to books for children all over the world. We are all really excited to be celebrating books and writing in all sorts of ways. We hope that as many of you as possible will join with us in our celebration.

Yours sincerely,

Jacki Piper and Nick Sharp
