

Talking to 14+ year olds

Before you start the conversation

Think about when and where is the best to talk to them - in the car or a neutral place where they feel safe

Jot down what you want to say to focus your mind and make the conversation relevant to them

Be open and encouraging to make them feel supported

Have a few bite sized conversations to give them time to process

What you need to know

Having an honest relationship with your child is the first step in being able to tackle cyberbullying

Talk to them about their digital lives, just as you would their offline lives

A large majority of young people that have experienced bullying will never tell anyone or report it because of fear that it will not be taken seriously

Ditch the Label research found that those who have experienced bullying themselves are also twice as likely to go on and bully others

Bullying is a learnt behaviour - so it's important to set a good example and regularly reinforce being a good digital citizen

Key warning signs

Aggressive behaviour

Self-isolation

Lack of appetite

Hesitancy to go to school

Over consumption of the internet and online games

Sudden behavioural changes

Visible signs of self-harm

Tips to prevent cyberbullying

Bring digital experiences up into normal, everyday conversations

Remember, there is often little distinction between what your children do online and offline

Remind your child that they should always treat others as they want to be treated

Talk about prominent cases of cyberbullying in the media and any trending apps or platforms as a starting point to discuss the issue

Discuss the potential consequences of what they say and do online, along with the 'stickiness' of the web. Once it's out there, it's very difficult to remove content

Talk about how they would deal with seeing someone else being bullied and what steps to take

Help them to understand that their behaviour in online environments should reflect their offline behaviour

Check to see if they're aware of how to report or block people on the apps they use

Make them aware of places to turn for help like Ditch the Label who have a dedicated online support hub and community available at www.DitchtheLabel.org

Encourage your child to set high privacy settings and not to connect with anybody who they don't know offline

Help them gain the social and critical skills they need to navigate the online world

Tips to deal with cyberbullying

Listen to what they have to say and make sure they know you are taking it seriously

Help them feel empowered and supported to deal with the situation

Ask them how you can help them, or what steps they want to take next

Collect evidence and together assess how serious the cyberbullying is by the impact it has had on your child

Report and block the perpetrator to the site's administrators/moderators

If they are the perpetrator, help them understand the impact of their actions, what to do to deal with consequences and change their behaviour. It's also important to show you understand why they are behaving in such a way

What you can do next

Check in with them regularly

Be involved in their digital life, ask them to show you the apps / games they use

Be aware of the signs of cyberbullying and keep an eye on their behaviour

Create an environment where they feel safe to talk to you or a trusted adult about what they may be going through
