your pathway into a degree?

EPS FUTURES

FOUNDATION YEAR

The College of Engineering and Physical Sciences (EPS) at the University of Birmingham offers a bold new pathway specifically for students from disadvantaged backgrounds. We believe that many young people have the talent to succeed in an engineering or physical sciences degree at the University of Birmingham but because of their background or circumstances may not have considered it as a possibility.

EPS Futures aims to be transformative. It will be.

A flexible one year foundation programme following a mixed science and maths curriculum allowing progression to a range of subsequent three- or four-year engineering and physical sciences degrees including:

- Aerospace Engineering
- Chemistry
- Chemical Engineering

- Mathematics
- Mechanical Engineering
- Materials Science and Engineering
- Physics and Astronomy

Choices about which particular degree you want to progress on to will be made mid-way through the foundation year.

Restricted to students from the lowest participation in higher education backgrounds identified using quintile 1 of the 2018 POLAR4 data published by the Office for Students. Find out if you qualify by entering your home address postcode at www.officeforstudents.org.uk/data-and-analysis/polar-participation-of-local-areas

Fully funded for one year. This covers all tuition fees and living costs including the opportunity to live in students accommodation on campus if required.

Supportive of your particular learning needs. We will help support you with integration into university life, alongside assigning mentors and industrial links to facilitate work experience, employment or further study.

Reduced entry requirements. Typical A level offers of CCC with GCSE Maths at level 5 or higher.

Nursing is such a versatile career choice. Where else could you work in a hospital, GP surgery, hospice, patients' homes, school or prison? It's a career that travels well, so nursing is a great choice if you're keen to work abroad in future too!

Whatever specialty you choose, one thing is certain – you'll be part of a team that makes a huge difference to patients from day one.

Getting started

Studying for a degree is essential to being a registered adult, children's, learning disability or mental health nurse. But do you know there are different routes when it comes to getting into the profession?

Finding a healthcare assistant role is a great way to get a taste of what nursing is like. Or a nursing associate apprenticeship provides great experience in different settings while studying for a foundation degree (which can be put towards a full degree).

Registered nursing degree apprenticeships are available in some areas too without the need to study full time at university. And some universities are offering adult nursing courses where the theoretical content is mainly delivered online – a great option for more mature students who need to fit studies around their home life.
