EGGCITING EGG COMPETITION

You will be EGGSTATIC to learn that we will be holding a decorated egg competition again this year, on the last day of the Spring term, Friday 3rd April.

Eggs should be decorated at home, but don't forget to boil them first! It would be no YOLK if any eggs got cracked that were uncooked, EGGSTREMELY EGGSPASPERATING! They can be painted EGGSQUSITELY, in the traditional manner, or dressed to look like EGGSTRAORDINARY characters...it's up to you, but they must have your child's name and class on them and be brought to school no earlier than the last Friday!

There will be a prize for the most EGGCEPTIONAL egg in each class and we will also be giving a prize in an EGGSCCLUSIVE category- eggs decorated by parents or other adults. They will all be EGGSHIBITED in the hall, and EGGSAMINED by a panel of judges! There is no entry fee, so you won't have to SHELL out any cash.

With your support, this Easter EGGSTRAVAGANZA should be a fun EGGSPERIENCE for all! We look forward to seeing your decorated eggs on Friday 3rd April. So, GET CRACKING!

Bradley Green Year 4 @year4BG · 11m

We spent Wednesday visiting Acresfield community gardens, we learnt so much from the volunteers who told us so much about seed dispersal, seasonal produce, insects and habitats. We loved exploring the pond and all the different areas around the garden. #BSW2020

SCIENCE WEEK

All classes have had an amazing week for this year's science week including visits to Acresfield Community Gardens..

BradleygreenY5 @BradleygreenY5

What a fantastic afternoon we have had today visiting our community gardens. We have learnt about parts of the plant, making new plants, seed dispersal and pollination. The children are made up and lots of new learning! #scienceweek #curiosity

3 Bradley Green Y3 @Y3BradleyGreen

We loved our visit to Acresfield Community gardens this morning. We had talks on seed dispersal and pollination, we planted our own sunflower seeds and we even had time for a snack!
