Landmark

The Arc de Triomphe

The Arc de Triomphe (meaning arch of victory), at the centre of the place de l'Étoile and the western end of the Champs-Élysées, is a very famous monument in Paris.

Emperor Napoléon Bonaparte commissioned it in 1806 after victory in the Battle of Austerlitz. It is a large arch, but it is not possible to drive underneath it. Jean-François Chalgrin designed it, and it has roughly 300 steps that lead to the top. It has four main sculptures and six reliefs. Just beneath the vault of the arch, there is the tomb of the unknown soldier. The names of French generals and battles are engraved on the walls.

Beneath the Arc is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier from World War I. Interred on Armistice Day 1920, it has the first eternal flame lit in Western and Eastern Europe since the Vestal Virgins' fire was extinguished in the fourth century. It burns in memory of the dead who were never identified (now in both world wars).

Song

Alouette

Alouette, gentille Alouette
Alouette je te plumerai
Je te plumerai la tête
Je te plumerai la tête
Et la tête, et la tête
Alouette, Alouette
Ah!
Alouette, gentille Alouette
Alouette je te plumerai

te plumerai le bec
Et le bec, et le bec
Et la tête, et la tête
Alouette, Alouette.....

Je te plumerai le cou
Je te plumerai le cou
Et le cou, et le cou
Et le bec, et le bec
Et la tête, et la tête
Alouette, Alouette.....

Je te plumerai les ailes
Je te plumerai les ailes
Et les ailes, et les ailes
Et le cou, et le cou
Et le bec, et le bec
Et la tête, et la tête
Alouette, Alouette.....

Je te plumerai les pattes
Je te plumerai les pattes
Et les pattes, et les pattes
Et les ailes, et les ailes
Et le cou, et le cou
Et le bec, et le bec
Et la tête, et la tête
Alouette, Alouette...
