A note from Mrs. Jameson

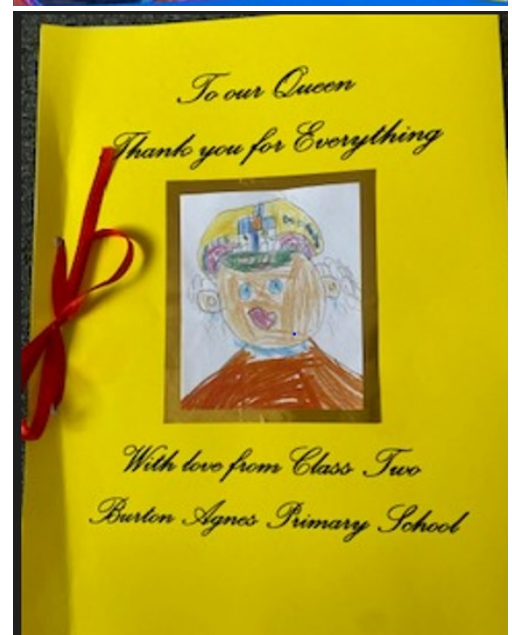

This week in school, we have spent time thinking about Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. We have celebrated her life and talked about her role in our society. Today Rev Rich Townend came in and we said our own goodbye to the Queen, along with sharing his own very funny story about her.

The children have been busy making and writing cards, which one of our parents will lay for us in London this weekend. I am touched by the thought, care and consideration that has gone in to these. They are very special.

Don't forget that we would love your child to create a piece of work to celebrate the life and reign of the Queen. This could be a piece of art work in the form of a painting, collage or drawing. It could be a sculpture, Lego model or some sewing. Perhaps it could be a poem or memory about the Queen or it could be a prayer for the Queen. Any thing goes really. Please send your work in to school by Friday 23rd September and we will create a display which we will keep up for a period of time and then keep as a record in the school log. Please can you make sure your child's name is on their work.
