This week...

At Carleton Green we have had another busy week.

Our first half term is complete. It has been a fantastic start to the new school year. Our new Ducklings have settled so well into their classes. It has been such a pleasure to watch them learning new things and making new friends.

The whole school has embraced a new writing approach and we couldn't be prouder of the way they have adjusted and embraced their learning. They have produced some of the highest quality writing I have seen in my many years of teaching. If this is after only 6 weeks, then I genuinely can't wait for the rest of the school year.

Year 3/4 took part in a Stone Age workshop on Wednesday and had a great time consolidating their learning, having their questions answered and the opportunity to look at some wonderful resources.

Thank you for your continued support both within and beyond school.
