What can we say about World Book Day? The parade was amazing - thank you so much to all the families who put in such an amazing effort. Your children looked wonderful and we definitely caused a stir in the neighbourhood with that great display. Also huge thanks to everybody who brought in a book to swap - hopefully everyone got something exciting in return. We will be sending out an extra special World Book Day Chatter next week to fill you in on all the activities today but I think it's fair to say that they definitely involved BOOKS! Many thanks to Charlotte and Sarah for organising the day. Charlotte even brought her dog along as Toto, to complete her costume. It was definitely a highlight of the morning for the children.

In other news, Chiffchaff did a fantastic assembly yesterday about the vicious Vikings. However, it turned out some of them weren't very vicious after all...

Also on Thursday, Swift class enjoyed a cooking session that tied in with their Greeks topic, making hummus and tzatziki and learning how to chop vegetables safely. Some of them were even brave enough to try a stick of celery!

We will be celebrating Comic Relief next Friday so we would encourage the children to dress in red if they have something suitable already at home. We will be selling some red noses in the playground (while stocks last) to raise money for the charity - they cost £2 each.

Next week is also Science Week at Chisenhale so we will let you know what exciting experiments the children have been involved in.

Gemma Anidi, Headteacher
