The processing of Special Category Data requires an additional legal basis under GDPR and, in some cases, a substantial public interest condition from the Data Protection Act 2018. The processing of Criminal Convictions data requires a substantial public interest condition from the Data Protection Act 2018. In most cases the processing of this type of data will be related to a legal obligation around health and safety, equality or employment law.

The legal bases for each type of processing the school carries out will be recorded in the school's Record of Processing Activities (ROPA – please see the 'Record keeping' section below) and communicated to data subjects in the school's Privacy Notice (see the 'Privacy and transparency' section below).

11 RECORD KEEPING

The school will ensure it documents its processing activities in accordance with GDPR Article 30, listing the data it collects, the categories of data subjects and the legal basis for processing. The Record of Processing Activities (ROPA) will be maintained by the school's Data Protection Officer.

The school will not disclose personal data in FOIA requests if to do so would breach the data protection principles. In some cases, it may not breach the principles (an example would be senior management team professional email addresses) and the school will disclose personal data to comply with the obligations of FOIA.

18 CONFIDENTIALITY OF PUPIL CONCERNS

If a pupil raises concerns with a member of staff, the school will maintain confidentiality unless it has safeguarding obligations to disclose the information to relevant third parties.

Freedom of Information policy

1 THE SCHOOL'S OBLIGATIONS

The public have a right to ask for information held by Chisenhale Primary School under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA) and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 (EIR).

Chisenhale Primary School, has 20 school days, or 60 working days, whichever is shorter, in which to respond to FOIA or EIR requests. Both the FOI and EIR have "exemptions" or "exceptions" – circumstances under which we can legitimately refuse to provide some or all of the information requested. The school will always explain its reasons for refusing, and requesters have a right to ask us to review our decision.

The school is also required by FOIA to maintain a publication scheme [LINK] where it proactively publishes certain types of information in a framework set by the Information Commissioner's Office.

2 HOW WE MANAGE REQUESTS

FOIA requests should be submitted to info@chisenhale.towerhamlets.sch.uk

If staff directly receive a request quoting Freedom of Information or the Environmental Information Regulations, they will forward it to the Headteacher as soon as they can.

2.1 Clarifying requests

If it is not clear what the requester is asking for, the school can ask them to clarify their request. The 20 working day 'clock' then stops until clarification is received.

2.2 Withholding information

There are a number of exemptions in FOIA ('exceptions' in EIR) where the school can withhold information. The most common are:

- Where the information is already available to the public
- Where the information is due to be formally published at a future date
- Where disclosing the information would prejudice the prevention or detection of crime
- Where disclosing the information would affect the running of the school and undermine its internal planning and discussion
- Where disclosure would affect the health and safety of individuals
- Where disclosure would breach the data protection principles
- Where disclosure would breach the school's duty of confidentiality
- Where information requested is subject to legal professional privilege
- Where disclosure would prejudice the school's commercial interests or those of their contractors

There are other grounds for refusal under FOIA, where:

- It will take more than 18 hours to determine we hold the information, locate, extract and retrieve it
- The request is vexatious, according to range of criteria defined in law

If the school has concerns about disclosing the information requested, they will raise this with DPO at IG@connetix.co.uk as soon as possible, so any relevant exemption can be applied correctly.

2.3 Reviews and appeals

If a requester is unsatisfied with the response to their request, they can request an internal review. An internal review is carried out by a senior member of staff and allows the school to revisit how the request was handled and whether exemptions were applied correctly. An internal review should take no longer than 20 school days, though in exceptional cases may take longer.

2.4 The Information Commissioner

If the requester is unsatisfied with the outcome of the internal review, they may escalate the request to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO). The ICO will investigate the request and decide on whether the school has correctly complied with FOIA in the handling of the request. They may, for example, require the school to disclose information it claimed was exempt.
