

On-line learning

Here is a list of some online resources that you can use to stay connected to your current studies.

You will benefit from access to the following online resources that you will be familiar with from previous use with your classroom teachers, from homework and other independent studying. Keeping yourself reading and accessing the below resources during absence from school will ensure that you continue to develop and that you stay in touch with key vocabulary and activities that will help you to return with confidence and fewer gaps in your knowledge and skills. Please ensure that when using the below resources you use the correct exam board i.e. GCSE Business is AQA.

SENECA

Lots of short movies and live lessons that link directly to the current curriculum.

1) Keep them engaged in real-time learning

If your children are unlikely to spend the day at a desk on their homework, a useful way of engaging them in their learning is by doing real-time interactive activities.

BBC Teach hosts over 30 recordings of interactive 30 to 40-minute programmes called Live Lessons, originally designed for use in the classroom, featuring leading experts and some of the BBC's biggest brands and talent, including Doctor Who, Blue Planet Live and CBeebies.

2) Keep them active

If you're forced to stay indoors, it can be worrying to think that your children aren't getting the physical activity they need – especially since childhood inactivity has been labelled as a 'global epidemic' in itself.

Super Movers is a collaboration between the BBC and the Premier League to help get kids moving even in limited spaces, and is easy to implement in your own home.

Packed full of fun activities designed to get kids moving, Super Movers is curriculum-linked, so you can be sure that they're learning as they stay active, even in the confines of your living room.
