Geography

At Clarendon Infants School we believe that geography teaching gives children the chance to ask questions and to find out about the world around them, not only the natural features of our world but also the human features. A large percentage of our cohort have experienced living in other countries or other parts of the UK, we want to encourage them to not only share their knowledge with their peers but to build on it so that all children begin to understand their place in the world. We want children to learn to compare and contrast as well as use geographical vocabulary when they are talking about the world to prepare them for their future geography learning. We want them to learn about the geography of Tidworth and the surrounding area as well as other places in the world so that they are inspired to be interested in the world and its people and to want to find out more about it.

We aim to provide children with access to high quality books and resources to aid their research skills. We want them to experience trips to the local area as well as further afield to make their experience of geography a hands on one and to give them plenty of wow moments. We want to exploit the diversity of our children, staff and parents to give meaningful experiences to all the children. Our hope is that these skills, knowledge and experiences will give them a passion for geography and to inspire them for the rest of their lives.
