USA in the 1930s - What You Must Know

How did the Great Depression affect people's lives?	Shareholders lost their money. 5,000 banks closed down. People bought fewer consumer goods, leading to 100,000 businesses closing. By 1932, 25% of people were unemployed. Poor people lived in Hoovervilles or became hobos. Some sold apples to try and make some money. People joined breadlines to receive food from soup kitchens.	Farmers went bust – they grew too much food and people couldn't afford to buy as much. The Dust Bowl wrecked farms. Farms were sold in foreclosure sales . Okies and Arkies left their farms and migrated to California.
How did Herbert Hoover respond to the Great Depression?	Hoover believed Americans were 'rugged individualists' who could sort themselves out. He did little to help as he believed in laissez faire.	When he did help he did too little too late. He spent $4 billion on projects like the Hoover Dam. He brought in the Hawley-Smoot Tariff. This backfired as other countries then bought fewer American goods. He brought in the Emergency Relief Act which aimed to spend $300 helping the unemployed.
Why did FDR win the 1932 Election?	Hoover lost as he did little to help those in need. Also some of his ideas like the Hawley Smoot Tariff failed. He refused to give money to the Bonus Marchers and used the army to clear their camp. Two babies died. This made Hoover look harsh and uncaring.	Roosevelt won as he promised the American people a New Deal . He spoke to 'forgotten Americans' and gave 60 speeches all over the country. This made him very popular. He had a history of helping people – he set up soup kitchens when he was Governor of New York.
How did the New Deal help America?	Roosevelt scrapped Prohibition. This was popular and made jobs in bars and breweries. He brought in a 4-day Bank Holiday. Only well-run banks reopened. This restored people's trust in the banks. The Glass-Steagul Act banned banks from gambling money on shares.	The New Deal set up many Alphabet Agencies . CCC – This gave young men experience working in the countryside eg. building national parks. AAA – This paid farmers to destroy food (eg. 6 million pigs). This pushed up food prices so farmers made more money.
How did the TVA help America?	This was an Alphabet Agency. It built 33 dams in the Tennessee Valley. This created 200,000 jobs . Dams helped the farmers – they prevented droughts and allowed the irrigation of crops. Thunder on the Left – felt Roosevelt needed to do	The dams made cheap electricity (HEP). This attracted aluminium and fertiliser factories to the area. People had jobs, money and electricity – they bought consumer goods. This helped cause a Cycle of Prosperity. Righteous Right – felt Roosevelt had gone too far. Eg. rich
Why was there Opposition to the New Deal?	more. Huey Long – called for 'Share our Wealth' – take money off millionaires and give it to the poor. Francis Townsend – wanted old people to receive a pension. In return they would give up their jobs and spend their pension eg. on consumer goods.	people hated paying taxes to fund the New Deal. Some felt money was wasted on pointless jobs – Boondoggling . Supreme Court felt some parts of the New Deal broke the law. Republicans opposed the idea of the government being so hands-on.
How did Lend Lease and WWII help the US Economy?	USA sent weapons and food supplies to help Britain and Russia. $50 billion was spend on this. This created lots of jobs in US factories and farms.	USA joined WWII in 1941. This created millions of jobs in the military and in factories making weapons etc. Car factories (eg. General Motors) were converted to produce tanks and guns.
Why did the Great Depression end?	New Deal: New Deal cut unemployment from 25% to 14%. CCC gave young men skills and experience. TVA created 200,000 jobs. Banks recovered and lent money to businesses.	Lend Lease/WWII Lend Lease and WWII ended unemployment. When Roosevelt cut spending on the New Deal, unemployment rose again (the Roosevelt Recession). War meant millions worked in the military, in factories (eg. Wrigleys, making ration packs) and on farms.
How did Popular Culture Develop in the 1930s?	People kept on going to the cinema to escape the misery of the Great Depression. The first colour films appeared (eg. The Wizard of Oz) and the first Disney cartoons (eg. Snow White).	Jazz music remained popular. Swing music and music from films (eg. Somewhere Over the Rainbow) were also popular. The first comics appeared (eg. Superman). Sports stars included Jesse Owens . The WPA paid artists, actors and writers during the Great Depression.
How did WWII affect Women in the USA?	Before WWII many women were housewives at home. War meant women got jobs like nurses in the army.	WWII meant women worked in the factories – 'Rosie the Riveter' persuaded more women to make planes etc.
How did WWII affect African Americans in the USA?	Many Black Americans joined the military but faced racism. In the army, black soldiers were in separate units. In the navy they could only be cooks or waiters. Racism led to the Double V Campaign , calling for victory in the war and victory over racism back home.	CORE was set up and used non-violent methods to campaign for Civil Rights. FEPC was set up to try and ensure greater equality in factories. The Tuskagee Airmen showed black pilots were as good as white.

The Vietn	am War Part 1 – What You Must	Know
Why did the French leave Vietnam?	Vietnam used to be called Indochina. It was once part of France's empire. The French treated the people badly which led to the communist Viet Minh being set up to fight back. It was led by Ho Chi Minh.	The Viet Minh heavily beat France at Dien Bien Phu in 1954. France left Vietnam. The country was split in two. North Vietnam = communist. South Vietnam = capitalist. There should have been elections to decide if the two would join together or not.
Why was there a civil war in South Vietnam? How did the USA get involved in Vietnam? Why was the Gulf of Tonkin Incident	Diem was the president of South Vietnam. He became very unpopular as he was corrupt and gave top jobs to family members. He arrested and sometimes killed opponents. He cancelled elections in 1956. He persecuted Buddhists, leading to the Buddhist Crisis. Due to the Cold War, USA wanted to stop communism spreading. USA believed communist spread due to the Domino Theory. Therefore they helped South Vietnam with the Truman Doctrine. In 1964, USA said North Vietnam had tried to attack a US ship called the USS Maddox. This led to the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution which gave President Johnson permission to send in soldiers to fight.	Protests grew. Quang Duc burnt himself to death in the middle of a main road. The Viet Cong was set up to fight against Diem. They were communists and had the support of North Vietnam. Eventually Diem was assassinated in 1963. Under Eisenhower, USA sent advisors and $250 million a year. Under JFK the number of advisors increased to 23,000. The USA built Strategic Hamlets to cut people off from the V.C. However this backfired as it offended many Vietnamese. In 1965 the VC attacked a US base at Pleiku. This led to the USA fully joining the war and bombing North Vietnam (Operation Rolling Thunder).
important? Who were the Viet Cong? How did the Viet Cong fight against the Americans?	The VC fought using guerrilla warfare tactics. They did not wear uniforms. They relied on help from villagers who gave them food and shelter. They stuck to a code of conduct, eg. no flirting. Punji traps – holes full of bamboo sticks covered in poo. Tunnels – eg. Cu Chi – allowed the VC to do surprise attacks. Ambush – VC avoided big battles and did surprise attacks on the US in the jungle.	The VC received supplies from North Vietnam thanks to the Ho Chi Minh Trail . This was a network of paths running from N.V. to S.V. via Laos and Cambodia. These tactics had a psychological impact on US soldiers who struggled to fight back. This led to drink and drug problems. Some soldiers lost control (eg. My Lai).
How did the Americans fight against the VC?	Lesson 1: Hearts and Minds – money given to S.V. villagers to try and buy support. Didn't work as the V.C. offered the villagers land. Operation Rolling Thunder – bombing of N.V. and Ho Chi Minh Trail using B52 bombers. Often not accurate and damage was quickly repaired. US tactics failed to beat the VC and led to many civilians being killed, leading to more opposition to the war.	Lesson 2: Search and Destroy – surprise attacks on VC bases by helicopter. Villages would then be burnt down (Zippo Raids). But often innocent people would be killed. Napalm – used to burn the jungle but killed many civilians. Agent Orange – used to kill the jungle but led to pollution and birth defects.
What happened in the Tet Offensive? What happened in the My Lai Massacre?	1968 – VC launched a huge surprise attack on 100 S.V. cities. This showed how confident the VC were. They took part of the US embassy in Saigon. But the US fought back and quickly crushed the VC. 1968 – US soldiers on a Search and Destroy attack lost control and killed 500 innocent civilians. This was covered up by the army until 1969. Seymour Hersh then reported on the massacre.	USA was shocked – they thought they were winning the war but now clearly weren't. Walter Cronkite reported that the war was a stalemate – this led to people turning against the war in the US. USA was shocked at this war crime – led to more protests. Only one person went to jail for the massacre – Lt. William Calley. However, many Americans felt he was being made a scapegoat. Trust in the US Army began to fall.

The Vietnan	n War Part 2 – What You Must	Know
How did people protest about the Vietnam War?	People turned against the war due to media coverage, lives lost and the economic cost. Draft dodgers eg. Muhammed Ali opposed being forced to join the army. Protest songs were	Vietnam Veterans Against the War returned their medals and investigated war crimes. Protest marches were common in cities like Washington D.C. Protests put pressure on politicians to end the war and helped lead to the USA's withdrawal.
What happened	common, eg. Feel Like I'm Fixin to Die by Country Joe and the Fish. Students protesting about the war were	This led to more protests across the US. 2 million at Kent State University?	shot at by the National Guard. Four students died. Two weren't even protesting.	students joined a student strike. Neil Young wrote the song Ohio about the shootings.
How did the media affect the Vietnam War?	Media reported the bad news from the war. Walter Cronkite reported on the Tet Offensive and said the US couldn't win the war. This led to more negative coverage of the war. Radio stations played protest songs.	Newspapers printed shocking pictures, eg. of Kim Phuc who was burnt by napalm, and of the execution of a VC suspect. Media reports/pictures shocked many which led to more joining protests.
How did Nixon try to end the Vietnam War?	Lesson 1: Richard Nixon became president in 1969. He had promised to bring soldiers home but didn't want to be the first president to lose a war. Peace Talks – started in 1968 but achieved little until 1973. Vietnamisation – US soldiers left and were replaced with SV soldiers who US trained. These were often poor quality and many deserted (ran away).	Lesson 2: Invade Cambodia/Laos – this was to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail. This led to more protests and Congress banned USA from invading anywhere else. Operation Linebacker – bombed NV to get them to take peace talks seriously. This has some success. Madman Theory – Nixon spread rumours he was mad and might use nuclear weapons. Tried to scare NV into backing down but it didn't work.
Why was the Watergate Scandal important?	Nixon's supporters broke into the Democrats' HQ. Nixon lied and tried to cover up the break in. He was caught out and had to resign.	Nixon was distracted from events in Vietnam. SV lost the last American willing to help them. As a result they got less US money, leaving them weak.
How did the Vietnam War end?	1973 – both sides agreed a peace deal. This was arranged between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. The US would leave SV. SV stayed capitalist but would be able to decide its own future. US soldiers left in 1973.	This gave NV time to build up their army. They invaded South Vietnam in 1974. SV collapsed as there was no help from the USA. People fled in the Convoy of Tears . Saigon fell to communists in 1975. Refugees (Boat People) tried to escape
What were the consequences of the Vietnam War?	USA lost 58,000 soldiers. 2 million civilians died. The war was expensive meaning the US had less money to spend on Johnson' Great Society. USA's reputation was damaged and it failed to stop the spread of communism.	Huge areas of land were destroyed by chemicals like Agent Orange. This also led to large numbers of birth defects. Children born from relationships between US soldiers and Vietnamese women were rejected. Vietnam became one country and is still communist.

How did Britain develop an empire in India?	India is rich in spices and cotton. The East India Company traded with India and took over more land. This made Britain much richer. Some British people made a fortune and became nabobs like Robert Clive.	Robert Clive – led the EIC army and won the Battle of Plassey. He added Bengal to the British Empire. He signed the Treaty of Allahabad – this allowed Britain to collect taxes in Bengal. Warren Hastings – first Governor General of India. Encouraged cultural mixing, reduced crime and improved tax collection. This made money for Britain.
What happened in the Indian Rebellion?	Indians rebelled as Britain ignored their religious views and treated sepoys badly. Sepoys were offended by being asked to use cartridges coated in cow and pig fat.	120 British civilians were killed at Cawnpore so Britain used harsh tactics in revenge, eg. firing people from guns. This meant there was less trust been Britain and India. This was the start of some Indians wanting independence from Britain.
What was the impact of the British Empire on India?	Positive: Britain built railways and 80,000km of roads. Healthcare improved as Britain built sewers, hospitals, and vaccinated against smallpox. Schools and universities were built. Trade with Britain created jobs.	Negative: Indian workers were exploited. Indian resources were shipped back to Britain. There were 40 famines under British rule where 59 million people died. Opposition to British rule was harshly crushed eg. the Amritsar Massacre in 1919.
Why did India leave the British Empire?	After World War I and II, Britain was left nearly bankrupt. It only survived due to loans from the USA. USA was also opposed to the idea of empires, which put pressure on Britain.	Gandhi led a non-violent campaign against British rule. In 1930 he led the Salt March which was a protest about a British tax on salt. Gandhi was arrested by the British. India became independent in 1947.
Why did Britain develop an empire in Africa?	Britain seized land in Africa for economic reasons – to gain gold, diamonds, ivory, farm land. The British government also competed with other European countries to take land. Key individuals like Cecil Rhodes added land to the Empire.	Missionaries like David Livingstone tried to spread Christianity to the 'Dark Continent'. Many British people believed in Social Darwinism – that the British were a superior race. They believed this gave them the right to take over land in Africa.
Why did Britain add Egypt to its empire?	The Suez Canal was a short-cut to India. Britain bought shares in the canal and took over Egypt to protect the canal.	Owning the canal sped up the journey to India. This helped develop trade and made Britain more money. It also allowed Britain to move soldiers to India quickly.
Why is Cecil Rhodes significant?	He grew the empire in South Africa by gaining Rhodesia . He owned De Beers which mined diamonds. He planned the Cape-Cairo Railroad .	He believed in Social Darwinism . He brought in racist polices like preventing Africans from voting. This helped lead to Apartheid . He also left money to Oxford University to train students to help run the empire.
Why is the Boer War significant?	Britain tried to take land off the Boers in Transvaal in South Africa. They struggled to win the war and used harsh tactics such as concentration camps and scorched earth tactics.	The war showed Britain wasn't as strong as it thought. It led to the Liberal Welfare Reforms eg. free school meals, benefits and free health care (National Insurance). Britain took land rich in gold and diamonds.
What is imperial propaganda?	Imperial propaganda was information designed to persuade people to support Britain's empire.	It appeared on products in shops, posters, poems, songs etc. It was sometimes targeted at children.
How did Britain lose its African empire?	Britain was weaker and poorer after WWII. In 1956 Egypt took over the Suez Canal. Britain sent in soldiers to retake it but was made to back down by the USA. This humiliated Britain and showed other countries that Britain was weak. This is called the Suez Crisis .	In Gold Coast, Kwame Nkrumah was a nationalist leader. He set up Positive Action and used non-violent methods to win independence for Ghana. In Kenya, Jomo Kenyatta used peaceful methods. However, the Mau Mau used violence to try and win Kenya's independence.
Why did Britain join and then leave the European Union?	Britain did not join the EU to begin with as it was still focused on its empire in the 1950s. Britain joined the EU in 1973 as it had now lost its empire, and trade would be easier. The EU also brought in free movement of people.	Some in Britain opposed the EU. They felt free movement led to too much immigration to Britain. They also felt Britain was paying too much to the EU. Britain voted to leave the EU in 2016 and Brexit took place in 2020.
Why is the Falklands War is significant?	Britain set up the Commonwealth for countries which used to be in the empire. Some tiny places stayed under British control, eg. Falkland Islands . Argentina invaded these islands in 1982.	Britain, led by Margaret Thatcher, retook the islands. This led to more patriotism in Britain, and other countries took Britain more seriously. It also showed Britain hadn't totally abandoned ideas of empire.

Empire and Migration: Migration 700s – 1800 – What you need to know

Topic	Who migrated and when?	Why did people migrate?	What challenges did they face?	What impact did they have?
Why did the Vikings migrate to Britain?	Vikings, to Britain, 700s- 1000s	Economic reasons. Scandinavia was overcrowded. Lots of good farming land in England. Chance to make money eg. by taking gold from monasteries like Lindisfarne.	Opposition from the English. Alfred the Great defeated Vikings at Edington and made them agree to the Danelaw.	Introduced new words – eg. Friday. Cultural differences in the north. Improved farming methods.
Why did the Normans migrate to Britain?	Normans, to Britain, 1066	Economic reasons/war and violence. William Duke of Normandy conquered England after winning the Battle of Hastings in 1066. Many Normans migrated with him.	Opposition from the English – eg. in the Battle of Hastings.	Introduced French words to the English language. Built castles. Introduced the Feudal System.
Why did people migrate to America?	British, from Britain, 1600s- 1700s	Economic reasons Lots of cheap land. Chance to set up plantations growing tobacco/cotton to make money. Religious persecution Pilgrim Fathers were Puritans. Persecuted due to extreme beliefs. Left Britain to be free to worship how they wished.	Conflict with Native Americans, eg. Powhatan War. Struggled to produce food and faced new diseases.	Caused the number of Native Americans to halve. Developed the economy –set up plantations, which then led to slavery being introduced.
Why did the Huguenots migrate to Britain?	French, to Britain, 1500s/1600s	Religious persecution/violence. Huguenots were French Protestants. France was Catholic. Led to violent attacks – eg. St Bartholomew's Day Massacre in 1572. 1685 – Edict of Nantes removed. Huguenots lost protection and had to become Catholic or leave France.	Spoke French so treated with suspicion. Accused of taking jobs. Changed surnames to English to fit in .	Positive economic impact Developed industries like paper making, watch making, and silk weaving (eg. in Macclesfield).
What were the Ulster Plantations and the Highland Clearances?	English Scottish, from/within Britain, 1600s.	Ulster Plantations - economic reasons/government actions. Ulster = Northern Ireland. In 1600s, Ireland was poor - limited trade with Britain. Under James I, English/Scottish Protestants moved to Ulster. Took land off Irish and developed towns like Londonderry. Highlanders - war and violence/economic reasons	Ulster – Protestants faced opposition from Catholic Irish.	Ulster - Northern Ireland has large Protestant population. Caused years of tension leading to the Troubles.
	Scottish, from/within Britain, 1700s.	Highlands was poor farming land (crofts). Highlanders were mainly Catholics. Some supported the Jacobites who had rebelled against England. English landowners forced Highlanders off their land and replaced them with sheep farms to make more money.	Highlands – people lost livelihoods. Lived in poverty in Scottish cities instead.	Highlands - Helped develop the British Empire by settling in Canada and other colonies.

Why did the Irish and Russian Jews migrate to Britain?	Irish, to Britain, 1840s Russians, to Britain, 1880s	Irish - Economic reasons Many Irish were poor farmers. Potato blight led to Irish Potato Famine in 1840s – many died. Also, lots of jobs available in Britain due to Industrial Revolution.	Irish - Discrimination due to being Catholic. Accused of taking jobs, causing crime and spreading diseases.	Irish - worked as navvies building railways and canals so positive economic impact.
		Russian Jews - Religious persecution/war and violence Jews accused of murdering Tsar Alexander II. Faced violent pogroms. May Laws brought in to put restrictions on Jews – eg. had to shut businesses on Sundays.	Jews - Faced opposition — British felt there were too many poor Jews so Aliens Act passed in 1905 to limit their numbers.	Jews - Positive economic impact. Developed businesses like Tesco and Marks and Spencers. Worked in trades like shoemakers.
Why did people migrate from and within	British, from Britain, 1700s/1800s. British, within Britain, 1800s.	Australia - government actions - Prisoners were sen Australia. They had to work to build the colony. Posit farming and gold mining. Empire Migration – workers moved from one part of servants. Eg. Indians moved to Uganda to build the L	tive economic impact. If the empire to the other	Developed sheep
Britain in the 1800s?		Cheshire-USA Migration – economic reasons - people moved from Congleton to New Jersey when silk mills closed in the 1860s. Rural-Urban Migration - economic reasons - New farm machine meant that fewer workers were needed in the countryside. Lots of jobs were available in industrial cities, eg. working in cotton mills in Manchester. Workers often ended up living in crowded slums. Cornish Tin Miners – economic reasons - moved to work as coal miners in the north of England when tin mines in Cornwall closed.
Why did people migrate to Britain from the Caribbean?	West Indians, to Britain , after WWII	Economic reasons (and also government actions) High unemployment in the Caribbean after WWII (eg. due to sugar prices being low). Also much damage was done by a hurricane. Britain had many job vacancies as the country rebuilt after WWII, eg. in the NHS or public transport. The British Nationality Act allowed anyone from a Commonwealth country to migrate to Britain.	Racism – this led to race riots eg. Notting Hill. Often ended up in worst quality housing and low-paid jobs.	Positive economic impact. Did key jobs like nursing. Positive cultural impact. Claudia Jones set up the Notting Hill Carnival and the West Indian Gazette to promote Black British culture.
Why did people migrate to Britain after WWII?	German Jews, to Britain, 1930s. Ugandans, Vietnamese, Indians, to Britain, after WWII.	German Jews (1930s) – fled religious persecution in Nazi Germany. Children moved to Britain on Kindertransport. India/Pakistan – moved due to government policy (British Nationality Act) Ugandan Asians (1970s) – Idi Amin claimed God told him to expel Asians from Uganda. Many left, fearing violence. Mostly welcomed to Britain. Many set up businesses. Vietnamese (1970s) - left South Vietnam after it fell to Communism. Boat People moved to Hong Kong then Britain.
Why do people migrate to Britain in the C21?	Poles, to Britain, 2000s. Ukraine/Iraq/Sy ria/Afghanistan, to Britain, 2000s.	Poles - Government actions/economic reasons EU has freedom of movement. When Poland joined the EU, Poles could move to Britain. Wages were low in Poland but much higher in Britain. Britain had shortages of some jobs eg. plumbers or fruit/veg pickers. Ukrainians/Syrians/Iraqis/Afghans – escaping from war and violence.	Opposition from people who claimed migrants were taking people's jobs.	Positive economic impact – often did the jobs many British people didn't want to do.

Edward I – Warfare and Scotland – What you need to know

Key Question	Key Information	Key Information
What was warfare like in the Middle Ages?	Battles were rare. One tactic was to use a schiltron made up of spears to stop a cavalry charge. Different types of soldiers included knights (cavalry), infantry, archers and specialists (eg. miners).	The Scots used a schiltron at the Battle of Falkirk but it didn't work – Edward's archers fired arrows at it. Edward used trebuchets in sieges to attack castles and scare his enemies.
Why did England and Scotland go to war?	Edward was asked to pick a new king for Scotland (the Great Cause). He chose John Balliol but demanded that the new king be loyal to him. This angered many Scots. Scotland then became allies with France (the Auld Alliance). France were enemies with Edward which angered him.	Edward defeated the Scots in the Battle of Dunbar. He then made the Scottish nobles sign the Ragman Rolls – they had to promise to be loyal to Edward. He also took the Stone of Scone – the stone on which all Scottish kings were crowned. This led to more anger.
What happened in the Battle of Stirling Bridge?
What happened in the Battle of Falkirk?	Edward marched an army to Scotland. He beat Wallace at the Battle of Falkirk . Edward had Wallace hung, drawn and quartered. Edward became known as the 'Hammer of the Scots'. Edward brought Scotland under his control.	Edward had showed his strength and power. However, the war was expensive and he couldn't afford to build massive castles like he had in Wales.
What was Edward I's legacy?	Edward faced unrest and rebellion in Scotland. Seven years after Edward's death, Scotland regained its independence. Wales remained under English control, though there were later rebellions.	Edward refused to pay homage to France for Gascony (famous for producing wine). This led to a war which caused tension with the English nobles – some refused to fight without Edward being there. Eventually, Edward kept control of Gascony.

Study: North Wales in the Reign of Edward I

Why did Edward go to war in Wales?	Wales had good land for sheep – taking Wales would allow Edward to make more money. He also fell out with Llywelyn (the Prince of Wales) who wouldn't pay homage to Edward.	Llywelyn had stood up to Edward's father Henry and made him look weak. Edward wanted to show that he was more powerful than his father.
What happened when Edward I invaded Wales?	Edward invaded Wales and beat Llywelyn in 1277 because he cut him off from his food supply in Anglesey. The Treaty of Aberconwy allowed Llywelyn to keep some of his land but lost a lot of power. Five years later he rebelled against Edward. Edward marched into Wales with a huge army. Llywelyn was killed in battle at Orewin Bridge and Edward took control of Wales. Dafydd (Llywelyn's brother) was hung, drawn and quartered.
How did Edward I control Wales?	Edward conquered Wales. To keep it under control he built huge castles, e.g. Caernarfon and Beaumaris. The Statute of Rhuddlan made Wales follow English laws. Edward built new towns (bastides) filled with English people, eg. at Conwy.	Wales was now under English control. This meant Edward had shown how powerful he was. He was also able to make more money from trade (e.g. wool) and from the new towns like Caernarfon.

Point	North Wales shows military control.	North Wales shows economic development.	North Wales shows Edward showing off his power.	North Wales shows political control.	North Wales shows social/cultural changes
	A network of new castles was built eg. Conwy, Harlech, Rhuddlan, Beaumaris and Caernarfon.	New bastide towns such as Conwy and Caernarfon were built.	Caernarfon Castle has lots of symbols showing power and linking Edward to the Roman emperors.	The Statute of Rhuddlan made the Welsh follow English criminal laws.	Friars were sent in to improve the education and behaviour of Welsh clergy.
	Castles were built close to the sea to make them easy to resupply in a siege.	New towns had fairs and markets, leading to more trade. More tax was also paid.	The Eagle Tower has statues of eagles which was a Roman symbol.	English county and hundred courts and the Hue and Cry were introduced.	Developing the Church was seen as being a way of making Wales more 'civilised'.
	At Rhuddlan the River Clwyd was diverted to move it closer to the castle.	English settlers were given incentives to move to the new towns. They controlled mills and fisheries.	There are polygonal towers with bands of coloured stone at Caernarfon, copying Constantinople.	Wales was divided into counties like England. Officials such as sheriffs were introduced.	Some churches that had been damaged were rebuilt, eg. St. Asaph Cathedral.
	Beaumaris Castle has a symmetrical concentric design, making it very hard to attack.	New towns were located near to the sea, making trade easier.	Edward arranged for his son to be born at Caernarfon and then made him Prince of Wales.	Churches were reorganised and clergy who wouldn't change were replaced.	Wales now had to follow English laws, though Welsh property laws were still used.
	Caernarfon Castle has strong defences, eg. the King's Gate with 6 portcullis and 5 gates.	By 1300 Edward was making £600 a year from North Wales.	Edward imposed English laws and officials (eg. sheriffs) on the Welsh people.	Castles like Caernarfon contain lots of symbols which show off Edward's control.	Large numbers of English people moved to North Wales and settled in new towns.
	In towns like Conwy, English settlers were expected to defend the town if it was attacked.	From 1294, the Welsh Church had to pay taxes to Edward.	He showed his power by diverting the River Clwyd at Rhuddlan.
Analysis/Own Knowledge to Include	These castles cost £80,000 and were far larger and stronger than they needed to be given the strength of the Welsh. This suggests that they were not just built for military reasons. They also did not deter the Welsh from rebelling in 1294.	One of Edward's wider concerns was to develop the economy. In England he encouraged the expansion of the wool trade and brought out a new silver coinage. However, his wars in Wales cost far more than he could ever make back in his own lifetime.	Edward's father Henry III had been a weak king who had signed the Treaty of Montgomery and recognised Llywelyn as Prince of Wales. Edward wanted to show his power and prove that he was stronger than his father. However, some of his actions in Wales like raising taxes actually helped	Edward had developed his political control in England by introducing the Model Parliament and laws such as the Statutes of Westminster. Therefore, it makes sense that he would extend control in Wales. However, in England he'd also had disputes with the	Edward and Archbishop Peckham viewed the Welsh as uncivilised, leading to many changes such as English migration. However, if this was Edward's main concern, why were the Welsh excluded from the new towns at night? This suggests military control was also a
