BENTLEY

Bentley apprenticeships are a great way to gain new skills in an exciting business. As well as learning from people who have decades of experience, you will also work towards nationally recognised qualifications along the way. You may be surprised to learn that apprenticeships in the automotive sector are not just available for manufacturing or engineering disciplines. They have fantastic apprenticeships in all areas of the business, including Digital & IT, Business Management, Sales & Marketing, HR, Purchasing and Finance. The three -or four-year apprenticeship programmes help you build a balance of skills through training at work. At the same time, you will study for qualifications in your chosen field. You will also get a taste of organising your own community or charity projects with other apprentices and have a wide-ranging development programme designed to broaden skills for the best possible start to your career.
