Dear Parents/Carers ,

I am pleased to say that our attendance has shown a slight increase this week and that 1 class was not red, however there are still no green classes.

We have noticed a number of reasons for some of the absences this week and that some of them are very minor, so I am asking you to really think about whether your child needs to be off or not, or whether a quick dose of calpol or a plaster etc before getting them into school would do the job.

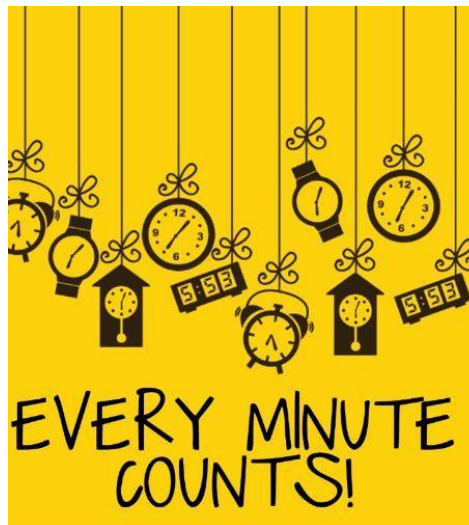

I can't stress enough how much we need the children in school to help them catch up on all of their missed learning this year. You may not think an odd day off matters, but as the learning carries on, those children who have missed it then come back in having to catch up on the day before's work so that they can access that day's work and even though the children are supported to do this, it can often leave them feeling at a disadvantage and/or frustrated.
