Some Spanish verbs are called stem-changers because when they are conjugated, the stem changes in a predictable way. In one group of stem-changing verbs, the letter e in the stem changes to i in all but the nosotros (we) and vosotros (you plural) forms. This particular type of stem-changing verb is found only in -ir verbs.

Ir and Dar are both irregular verbs. This means that they do not follow the same rules of conjugation as the regular AR, ER and IR verbs. However, they both share the same pattern.

Ir	Dar
voy	doy
vas	das
va	da
vamos	damos
vais	dais

Some verbs are irregular in present tense but only when you are using the first person, so in other words, 'I'.

1.2 The perfect tense

The perfect tense is the exact equivalent to the English “I have seen”, “she has lost” etc.

As in English it consists of part of the verb

“to have” plus a past participle (seen, lost etc).

María ha perdido su bolsa

María has lost her bag

To form the perfect tense you need to do the following:

1. Find the correct form of the auxiliary verb ‘Haber’ depending upon to whom you are referring.

He

Has

Ha

Hemos

Habéis

Han

2. Find the infinitive of the verb that has been done

Eg: “spoken” – to speak – hablar

3. Turn it into a past participle by doing the following:

i. Take off the 2-letter ending

ii. For –ar verbs add “-ado”

iii. For –er and –ir verbs add “-ido”

Hablar – Hablado

Vivir – Vivido

Beber – Bebido

However, there are quite a few Spanish verbs which are irregular in the past participle. Here are some of the ones you will use more frequently:

Abrir (to open)
Dicir (to say)
Descubrir (to discover)
Escribir (to write)
Describir (to describe)
Hacer (to make/do)
Morir (to die)
Poner (to put)
Romper (to break)
Ver (to see)
Volver (to return)

abierto (opened)
dicho (said)
descubierto (discovered)
escrito (written) describido (described)
hecho (made/done)
muerto (died)
puesto (put) roto (broken)
visto (seen) vuelto (returned)

To make the perfect tense negative you simply add “no” in front of the “haber” part:

E.g: No he comprado (I haven’t bought)

The 2 parts (haber + past participle) do not get separated

For reflexive verbs you add your reflexive pronoun in front of the “haber” part:

E.g: Se ha despertado (He has woken up)

To make the reflexive verbs in the perfect tense negative you add “no” in front of the reflexive pronoun:

E.g: No se ha despertado (He has not woken up)

Practice – Translate the following into Spanish:

1. They have gone out (salir) to the park.....
2. You (pl,inf) have come (venir) to see Mr Jones.....
3. I have had (tener) a fantastic day.....
4. Francisco and Alejita have visited (visitar) their parents in Australia
.....
5. We have walked (andar) ten kilometres today.....

Choose one of the following images, and using the perfect tense, describe in Spanish, what has happened:

3.

1.3 – The present progressive tense

Also known as the present continuous, this verb is used in Spanish to describe something that is happening now.

The present progressive is usually formed using the verb ‘estar’ plus a present participle.

Present participles are formed as follows:

AR Verb = Stem of the verb plus ‘ando’ – hablando – speaking

ER/IR Verb = Stem of the verb plus ‘iendo’ – bebiendo – drinking

Viviendo – living.

We simply precede these with the verb ‘estar’ in its appropriate form:

Estoy

Estás

Está

Estamos

Estáis

Están.

In both English and Spanish the present progressive is used to talk about what a subject is doing right now. However, in Spanish it is possible to use both the present indicative (simple present) and the present progressive for the same purpose.

¿Qué haces? – What are you doing?

Limpio la cocina – I’m cleaning the kitchen.

¿Qué estás haciendo? – What are you doing?

Estoy limpiando la cocina – I am cleaning the kitchen.

Translate the following:

1. The thief is running away from the police.

.....

2. My sisters are playing basketball.

.....

3. Myself and the other actors are getting dressed.

.....

4. Are you working on a difficult project?

.....

5. The lift doors are not opening.

.....

6. I am combing my hair.

.....

7. You (pl) are watching the film.

.....

8. You (pl – formal) are doing that too quickly!

.....

1.4 – The present subjunctive

The subjunctive is not a tense – it is a mood.

A tense refers to when an action takes place. Whereas the mood reflects how the speaker feels about the topic.

Some examples of the subjunctive in English:

“The doctor recommends that he take the pills with the food”

“The law requires that you be 18 years old to vote”

“If I were a rich man I would have no worries”

Here are some examples so that you can see the difference between phrases in the present indicative and the present subjunctive:

You are going to Spain this summer – Vas a España este verano.

I don't doubt that you are going to Spain this summer – No dudo que vas a España este verano.

I doubt that you are going to Spain this summer – Dudo que vayas a España este verano.

The best way to remember when it is appropriate to use the subjunctive mood, it by using the acronym WEIRDOS.

W	Wishes, desires, Imperatives	Quiero que él.., Deseo que ella..., Necesito que usted..., Espero que tú...; Mando que..., insisto que... I Want or Need someone else to do something, I Order or Insist that someone do something
E	Emotion	Me alegro de que..., me entristezco de que..., Me enoja que..., Temo que... I get (become) Happy... , Sad..., It makes me angry ..., I'm Scared... that something or someone does something
I	Impersonal observations	Es bueno que..., Es Importante que..., Es Posible que... It's good that.., It's important that.., It's possible that....
R	Recommendations	Recomiendo que..., Sugiero que... I Recommend or Suggest that someone else do something
D	Doubt, Denial, Disbelief	Dudo que.., No creo que.., ¿Crees que..?, niego que... I Doubt that, I Don't believe that..., Do you believe that...? I Deny that....
O	Ojalá	Ojalá que... Let's hope to God that.., God willing that.., I wish that.....
S	Speculation	Adverbial conjunctions to express Conditions & Times in which things may occur: tan pronto como.., cuando.., en caso de que.., en cuanto.., a menos que.., para que.., sin que.., con tal de que.., antes/después de que.., aunque..,

For most verbs the present subjunctive is created by taking the Yo form of the present indicative – then drop the O and add the following endings:

AR Verbs:

e, es , e, emos, éis, en

Hablar

Habl + e = Hable

Hables

Hable

Hablemos

Habléis

Hablen

ER and IR Verbs:

a, as , a, amos, áis, an

Comer

Com + a = Coma

Comas

Coma

Comamos

Comáis

Coman

For AR and ER stem changing verbs, the rule is the same except in nosotros and vosotros in IR stem changing ue to u, ie to I, and I to i.

Present subjunctive verbs which have an irregular first person in present indicative, do exactly the same thing.

Tener – Tengo – Tenga

Conocer – Conozco – conozca

Salir - Salgo – Salga

The following are just plain irregular and need to be memorized:

Dar – To give	Estar – To be	Haber – To be (aux)	Ir – To go	Saber – To know	Ser – To be
Dé	Esté	Haya	Vaya	Sepa	Sea
Des	Estés	Hayas	Vayas	Sepas	Seas
Dé	Esté	Haya	Vaya	Sepa	Sea
Demos	Estemos	Hayamos	Vayamos	Sepamos	Seamos
Déis	Estéis	Hayáis	Vayáis	Sepáis	Seáis
Den	Estén	Haya	Vayan	Sepan	Sean

Translate the following sentences into Spanish using the present subjunctive (use the clauses in unit 6.4 to help).

1. I am going to do swimming provided that there is a pool.
2. My sister is going to do bungee jumping, it is likely that she is afraid.
3. It is unlikely that he is in France at the moment.
4. It is impossible that he sleeps for less than one hour per night.
5. It is important that we play sports every day.
6. I hope that I can go and do base jumping on Saturday.
7. I doubt that she knows where the cat is.
8. It is likely that I am going to a restaurant this evening.

1.5 The imperative

Using the imperative

When giving positive commands (that is, telling someone to do something), remove the infinitive endings from the verb (-ar, -er, -ir) and add these verb endings:

	tú	vosotros
-ar verbs	-a	-ad
-er verbs	-e	-ed
-ir verbs	-e	-id

When using negative commands (that is, telling someone not to do something), remove the infinitive endings from the verb (-ar, -er, -ir) and add these verb endings:

	tú	vosotros
-ar verbs	-es	-éis
-er verbs	-as	-áis
-ir verbs	-as	-áis

1 Complete the sentences with the correct form of command of the verb given in brackets.

- 1 Rosa, no _____ (help) a Manolo con sus deberes.
- 2 Pablo y Ricardo, _____ (do) el proyecto juntos.
- 3 Lucas, _____ (share) tu libro con Amelia, por favor.
- 4 Laura, _____ (listen) a tu compañero cuando está hablando.
- 5 Chicos, no _____ (mirar) por la ventana.

2 Translate the sentences into English.

- 1 Patricia, levanta la mano cuando quieras hablar.

- 2 Ana y Luis, no hagáis el ejercicio juntos.

- 3 José, busca las palabras en un diccionario.

- 4 Chicos, cerrad las ventanas por favor.

5 María, no compartas tu libro con Juan.

6 Jorge, ayuda a Emir con el problema.

7 Chicas, no corráis en los pasillos.

8 Escuchad con cuidado.

Unit 2

2.1 – Past imperfect and preterite tenses.

The preterite is used to describe an action which is completed. So for example:

‘On Wednesday I drank a glass of wine’

The imperfect is used to describe repeated actions in the past or aspects of an on-going experience in the past. So, for example:

‘I used to eat a ham sandwich every day’ or

‘My boss was always very nice’.

Preterite – Regular verb endings

-AR

yo	é
tú	aste
él/ella	ó
nosotros/as	amos
vosotros/as	asteis
ellos/as	aron

-ER/IR

yo	í
tú	iste
él/ella	ió
nosotros/as	imos
vosotros/as	isteis
ellos/as	ieron

Imperfect Regular verb endings

-AR

yo	aba
tú	abas
él/ella	aba
nosotros/as	abamos
vosotros/as	abáis
ellos/as	aban

-ER/IR

yo	ía
tú	ías
él/ella	ía
nosotros/as	íamos
vosotros/as	íais
ellos/as	ían

Preterite – Irregular verbs

There are some verbs which have a spelling change only in the ‘Yo’ form. They are verbs ending in:

- gar change g to gu. For example ‘pagar’ becomes ‘pagué’
- car change c to qu. For example ‘practicar’ becomes ‘practiqué’.
- zar change z to c. For example ‘empezar’ becomes ‘empecé’.

These verbs will then follow the normal rules for tú, él/ella, nosotros/as, vosotros/as, ellos/as.

Some verbs change the I to a y

Leer – leí, leíste, leyó, leímos, leísteis, leyeron

Oír - oí, oíste, oyó, oímos, oísteis, oyeron

Construir - construí, construiste, construyó, construimos, construisteis, construyeron.

There are some verbs where the stem changes. Fortunately, this only applies to some ir verbs in the él/ella, ellos/ellas form and follows two rules.

Type 1: e changes to I – for example: Pedir - (yo)pedí, (tú) pediste, (él/ella) pidió, (nosotros/as) pedimos, (vosotros/as) pedisteis, (ellos/as) pidieron.

Type 2: o changes to u – for example: Dormir – (yo) dormí, (tú) dormiste, (él/ella) durmió, (nosotros/as) dormimos, (vosotros) dormisteis, (ellos/as) durmieron.

Most of the other irregular verbs have an irregular stem (which changes) but common endings which follow the normal rules. Here are the most useful ones:

Infinitive	stem	ending	form
estar	estuv	estuve	yo
poder	pud	pudiste	tú
poner	pus	puso	él/ella
querer	quis	imos	nosotros/as
saber	sup	isteis	vosotros/as
tener	tuv	ieron	ellos/as
venir	vin

The ending for verb stems ending with a 'j' in the ellos/as form is 'eron' not 'ieron'. For example:

conducir	conduj	condujeron
decir	dij	dijeron
producir	produj	produjeron
traducir	traduj	tradujeron

The stem of hacer is hic but in the 'el/ella' form is hiz: hice, hiciste, hizo, hicimos, hicisteis, hicieron.

The preterite of haber which you commonly use as hay (there is/are) is hubo (there was/were).

The following verbs don't really follow any pattern, they just are what they are, so you have to learn them.

Dar (to give)	Ir (to go)	Ser (to be)	Ver (to see)
di	fui	fui	vi
diste	fuiste	fuiste	viste
dio	fue	fue	vio
dimos	fuimos	fuimos	vimos
disteis	fuisteis	fuisteis	visteis
dieron	fueron	fueron	vieron

Imperfect irregular verbs

There good news about the imperfect tense is that there are only 3 irregular verbs which need to be remembered.

Ir (to go)	ver(to see)	ser (to be)
iba	veía	era
ibas	veías	eras
iba	veía	era
íbamos	veíamos	éramos
ibais	veíais	erais
iban	veía	era

Fill in the gaps with an appropriate verb and tense (either imperfect or preterite)

Ayer _____ al cine con mi hermano menor ya que él _____ ver la nueva película de las guerras estelares. Cuando _____ joven _____ las películas de ciencia ficción todos los sábados, pero ayer no _____ las ganas de ir puesto que son tontos y una perdida de tiempo.

Mi madre me _____ que _____ que guardarle. ¡Pero yo no soy niñero!

En las vacaciones en el pasado, nosotros _____ mucho tiempo en la playa y a menudo _____ en el mar. Cuando _____ en la playa, mi hermano siempre _____ muy bien, como un angel. ¡Pero ayer _____ como un demonio!

Decir	Ir	Comportarse	Actuar	Querer	Pasar	Tener
Nadar	Estar	Ser	Ver

2.3 The past continuous tense

The past continuous tense

The past continuous is used to describe ongoing actions in the past, or an action which was interrupted. This tense needs to be used with a time phrase, or with another verb which describes the interrupting action. It's very similar in English and Spanish.

For example:

I was studying Spanish two days ago.

I was sleeping when the phone rang.

There is a slight difference between the use of the imperfect and the past continuous for these types of actions:

1. Imperfect tense = actions which went on for an extended period of time.
2. Past continuous = actions which went on for a specific time period in a specific situation.

The past continuous is formed in the same way as the present continuous, except the first verb, the verb estar, is in the imperfect tense.

estaba

estabas

estaba + gerund (present participle) ending in –ando or -iendo

estábamos (comiendo, durmiendo, cantando, estudiando...)

estabais

estaban

Translate these sentences into Spanish using the past continuous:

1. I was cooking two hours ago.
2. My sister was walking the dog yesterday at 2pm.
3. He was driving to the supermarket when he saw his brother.
4. It was raining all morning yesterday, so we could not go out.
5. They were asleep when the television programme started.
6. I was studying Spanish this morning because I have an exam this afternoon.
7. We were walking into town when it happened.
8. You (sing) were cleaning the car when the neighbour walked past.
9. She was going to the beach when Juan told her he was not coming.
10. You (pl) were waiting in the classroom when the teacher arrived.

Unit 3

3.1 – The simple future tense – aptly named.

Future tense - I will/I shall

Interesting fact: The future tense is also used to express wonder or probability in the present state. Eg:

¿Quién será ella? – I wonder who she is.

Estará viajando solo – He is probably travelling alone

3.2 The immediate future

Revising the immediate future

This is one of the simplest tenses in Spanish and is extremely useful for expressing your plans and intentions for the near future.

It is formed as follows:

voy	}	a + infinitive vas
va vamos
vais
van

1 Write sentences using the prompts provided.

Example: Carlos / dine with friends

Carlos va a cenar con amigos.

1 the chef / prepare spaghetti

2 the waiter / serve drinks first

3 we / have tapas in the café

4 my friend / be thirsty

5 I / serve salad with the chicken

6 you (plural) / try some regional dishes

7 my parents / cook squid tomorrow

8 my grandfather / have a glass of red wine

9 you (singular) / chose meat or fish?

10 we / drink water with the meal

11 what / you (plural) / have?

12 I / eat more fruit and vegetables in the future

13 my brother / make a Spanish omelette

14 the hot dogs / be very tasty

15 you (plural) / bring sandwiches to the party?

3.3 The future perfect tense

The future perfect tense

The future perfect tense is used where you would say ‘I will have done’ in English. It describes what will have happened before another action or event takes place, or by a specific time. It is formed by combining the simple future tense of the auxiliary verb haber and the past participle.

habré

habrás

habrá + past participle

habremos (hecho, visto, comido ...)

habréis

habrán

Habré leído los libros desde septiembre - I will have read the books by September.

Habrá vuelto de sus vacaciones para el diez de agosto - He/she will have returned from his/her holidays by the 12th of August.

The auxiliary verb and the past participle are never separated. If there is a negative or an object pronoun, this goes before the auxiliary verb.

The future perfect is also used to make a hypothesis about a past action where we don't have all of the information:

Ha estado muy molesta hoy. ¿Qué habrá pasado con ella? - She has been very upset today. What has happened (what will have happened) to her?

Practice!

Translate the following sentences into Spanish, using the correct form of the future perfect tense.

1. They will have paid for the party by the end of the month.
2. Will you (sing.) have bought a house by November?
3. She will have received the train tickets on Thursday.
4. We will have finished our lunch by the time you arrive.
5. Diego has not arrived. Has he (will he have) got lost?
6. When mum wakes up, we will have made the breakfast.
7. I will have walked the dog before the TV programme starts.
8. You (pl.) will have read the book before you do your exam.
9. They will have finished writing the book by Christmas.
10. You (sing.) will have received the letter before you leave.

4.1 The conditional tense

Using the conditional tense

The conditional tense translates as ‘would’ or ‘should’ in English.

Mi hermano ayudaría si tuviera más tiempo.

My brother would help if he had more time.

To form the conditional, add the following endings to the infinitive. The endings are the same for all verbs.

yo	-ía
tú	-ías
él / ella / usted	-ía
nosotros/as	-íamos
vosotros/as	-íais
ellos / ellas / ustedes	-ían

e.g.: hablaría, comería, viviría

Verbs which are irregular in the future have the same irregular stem in the conditional (instead of the infinitive). For example:

	Future	Conditional
hacer	haré	haría
tener	tendré	tendría
venir	vendré	vendría

Note that when ‘should’ in English means ‘ought to’, you need to use the conditional of deber followed by an infinitive.

¿Faltan voluntarios? Deberíamos ayudarles.

They’re short of volunteers? We should (= ought to) help them.

- 1 For each verb, write the 1st person singular ('I' form) of the conditional tense. Watch out for verbs that have an irregular stem.

1. comprar _____
2. vivir _____
3. aprender _____
4. hacer _____
5. dar _____
6. repartir _____
7. aprender _____

8. ir _____

9. tener _____

10. ser _____

2 Complete the sentences with the correct conditional form of the verbs in brackets.

1. Mi hermano dijo que _____ (llegar) a las once.

2. Mis amigos y yo _____ (deber) hacer más para ayudar.

3. ¿Qué _____ (hacer) tú, si tuvieras mucho dinero?

4. No sabía si mis padres _____ (venir).

5. ¿Qué te _____ (gustar) comer?

6. Estaba segura que mi amiga _____ (aprobar) el examen.

7. Si fueras a la universidad, ¿qué _____ (estudiar)?

8. Manuel me dijo que vosotros _____ (ayudar) a limpiar el bosque.

9. Me _____ (gustar) ayudar, pero _____ (ser) muy difícil venir a esa hora.

10. ¿Qué _____ (comprar) tú como regalo para tu hermana?

4.2 The conditional perfect tense

The conditional perfect tense

The conditional perfect is used to talk about something that would, could or should have happened, but didn't. It's often used for wishes or excuses. It is formed in the same way as the future perfect, using the conditional tense of the auxiliary verb haber and the past participle.

habría

habrías

habría + past participle

habríamos (hecho, leído, tenido...)

habréis

habrían

Habría comprado un regalo pero no tenía tiempo - I would have bought a present but I didn't have time.

Habría escrito una carta a su amigo pero no sabía la dirección – He would have written a letter to his friend but he didn't know the address.

It is often used in si clauses, where the conditional perfect describes what would or would not have happened, or an action that was dependent upon something else happening or not happening. The second verb in this tense is the pluperfect subjunctive.

Si no hubiera llovido, los niños habrían jugado en el jardín – If it had not rained, the children would have played in the garden.

Si hubiera sabido la hora del tren, te habría llevado a la estación – If I had known the train time, I would have taken you to the station.

Practice!

Translate the sentences into Spanish. Make sure you refer to the section on the pluperfect subjunctive for numbers 6-10.

1. I would have finished the work but I was very tired.
2. She would have walked the dog but she forgot.
3. They would have gone to the shoe shop but it was closed
4. I would have preferred a pizza rather than pasta.
5. We wouldn't have bought that car because it is too old.
6. If the team had trained more, they would have won the match.
7. If it had been sunny, you (sing.) would have gone to the beach.
8. If you (pl.) had done the homework, you would have passed the exam.
9. If Raquel had had time, she would have organised the meal.
10. If I had had the money, I would have bought the tickets.

Unit 5

5.1 The pluperfect tense

The pluperfect tense

The pluperfect tense is used to translate had done into Spanish. It is similar to the perfect tense but the actions that it refers to are further in the past. It is also formed in a really similar way to the perfect tense, using the auxiliary verb haber in the imperfect tense and the past participle:

había

habías

había + past participle

habíamos (hecho, vendido, vivido, hablado...)

habíais

habían

Había cerrado la puerta – He had closed the door

Había dado muchos regalos a sus padres – She had given a lot of presents to her parents.

The pluperfect is also used when an action was completed prior to another action.

Cuándo la película empezó, ya habíamos comido - When the film started, we had already eaten.

Cuándo llegamos al aeropuerto, el vuelo ya había partido – When we arrived at the airport, the flight had already left.

As with the perfect tense and other compound tenses, if there is a reflexive pronoun, negative or object pronoun this goes immediately before the auxiliary verb:

No me había lavado las manos – I hadn't washed my hands.

Practice!

Translate the sentences into Spanish.

1. Miguel had given a lot of money to charity because he liked to help people.
2. We had closed the windows before we went out.
3. He had revised for the English exam before the teacher reminded the class about it.
4. When your (sing.) parents arrived, we had already gone to the cinema.
5. She had already left when you called.
6. You (pl) went to the bank this morning, you had already been to the post office.
7. I had cleaned the house before I left to go on holiday.
8. You (sing.) got up late this morning because you didn't sleep well last night.
9. She had already walked the dog when her mother asked her to do it.
10. They were watching a TV programme that they had already seen.

Unit 6

Forming the imperfect subjunctive is pretty simple as long as you know how to form the 3rd person plural preterite.

IR/ER verb ending – ieron

AR verb ending – aron

We take whichever verb we are conjugating – for example hacer and conjugate it onto its 3rd person plural, preterite form, so in this case hicieron.

We then knock off the ron and replace it with the following:

Yo – ra	or	se
Tú – ras		ses
Él/ella – ra		se
Nosotros – ramos		semos
Vosotros – raís		seis
Ellos/ellas – ran		sen

The imperfect subjunctive follows the same rules as the present subjunctive in terms of WEIRDOS.

It can be used to talk about past occurrences, current opinions of past events, doubts and wishes, as well as in if clauses and polite requests.

1. Past occurrences – If the WEIRDO verb in the independent clause is in the preterite or the imperfect, then the subjunctive verb that follows will be imperfect. For example:

I wanted you to come to my party – Quise que vinieras/vinieses a mi fiesta.

I was afraid it wouldn't rain – Tenía miedo que no lloviera/lloviiese.

2. Current opinions of past events – Here, we would use it to express current emotions, doubts etc. About things which occurred in the past.

It's good that he got married – Es bueno que él se casara/casase.

It doesn't seem to me that the journey was very long – No me parece que el viaje fuera/fuese largo.

3. Doubts and wishes – It's common to see ojalá or ojalá que used with the imperfect subjunctive to express hoping for something which is unlikely to happen or impossible.

I wish it were snowing in Panama - Ojalá que nevara/nevase en Panamá

4. If clauses – When preceded by si, we use the imperfect subjunctive to discuss hypotheticals. The verb which follows will always be in the conditional.

If I were rich I would travel all over the world – Si yo fuera/fuese rico viajaría por todo el mundo.

5. Polite suggestions and requests - I would like an icecream – Quisiera/quisiese un helado

Using the imperfect subjunctive, translate the following:

1. I didn't think my teacher was right.
2. The doctor recommended that I see a specialist.
3. I wish it would rain money from the sky!
4. It was amazing that you (plural) received a refund immediately.
5. My mother wanted me to bring the gifts.
6. I would buy the food for the party if you prepared the food.
7. The waiter suggested that I try the menu of the day.
8. It is not certain that the students completed their work after school.
9. It was incredible that you survived the earthquake.
10. Robert preferred that the house had three bedrooms.

6.2 – The pluperfect subjunctive

In English, we use the pluperfect along with the auxiliary verb “had” followed by the past participle: “She had done.”

In Spanish the pluperfect is formed in the indicative but using the imperfect form of haber (había, habías, había, habíamos, habíais, habían) followed by the past participle: Había estudiado.

In Spanish, the pluperfect can also be used in the subjunctive mood (WEIRDOS), by using the subjunctive form of haber (hubiera, hubieras etc.)

For example – Dudo que hubiera estudiado. – I doubt that she had studied.

Using these guidelines, create 5 phrases of your own in the pluperfect subjunctive.

1).....

2).....
.....

3).....
.....

4).....
.....

5).....
.....

6.3 – The present perfect subjunctive.

The present perfect subjunctive is a combination of the present subjunctive of the verb haber (haya, hayas, haya, hayamos, hayáis, hayan) and the past participle.

This is used to describe past actions that are still connected to the present or actions that will have happened by a certain point in the future.

For example:

It's good that we talked – Es bueno que hayamos hablado

It's possible that they will have returned by Tuesday – Es posible que hayan vuelto para martes.

Fill in these gaps:

1. No estoy segura de que ella se (poner) tacones altos para bailar.
2. Mi profesor duda que (yo - leer) el libro.
3. Espero que (ellos – despegar) en avión correcto.
4. Me sorprende que (tú – ir) a escocia.
5. El médico se alegre que por fin mi padre (dejar) de fumar.

Now translate into English.

6.5 Clauses with ‘si’

Revising si clauses

To say you ‘will do something, if...’, you need to use si and a combination of the present and the future tense. The verb after si is in the present; the other verb is in the future.

Si apruebo los exámenes, iré a la universidad. If I pass my exams, I will go to university.

Viajaré a España si tomo un año libre. I will travel to Spain if I take a year out.

To form the future tense, take the infinitive and add these endings: -é, -ás, -á, -emos, -éis, -án.

Note the irregular stems: tener – tendr... and poder – podr...

1 Translate these sentences into English.

11. Si necesitas más dinero, tendrás que buscar trabajo.

12. Continuaré con mis estudios si no encuentro un aprendizaje.

13. Si decido hacer una carrera universitaria, visitaré varias universidades antes de escoger.

14. Si me dan el trabajo, seré un empleado trabajador y ambicioso.

16. Si tomo un año libre antes de ir a la universidad, viajaré a Australia para trabajar.

17. Tendré más oportunidades de trabajo si tengo experiencia laboral.

18. Si dejo el instituto ahora, no tendré los conocimientos que necesito.

19. No podré hacer el curso si suspendo el examen.

20. Si hago este trabajo voluntario durante el verano, será útil en el futuro.

27. If you continue with the course, you will have (tener) the opportunity of work experience.

28. If I can't reach a decision, I will attend (asistir a) this presentation.

Unit 7

7.1 Reflexive verbs

Reflexive verbs

A reflexive verb is a verb where the subject and the object is the same, and is used with a reflexive pronoun. The infinitives of reflexive verbs in Spanish all have -se attached to the end, for example levantarse, acostarse etc. In Spanish, reflexive verbs are used for verbs which describe things that you do to yourself or that involve a change of some description. Examples of this are to sit down, to get bored, to get up.

Some verbs have both a reflexive and non-reflexive form, and this changes the meaning of the verb. For example, think about the difference between:

Me lavo por la mañana and Lavo el coche.

or

Me llamo Pedro and Llamó la policía después del accidente.

Reflexive pronouns can be seen in the table below:

Subject pronoun	Reflexive pronoun	Meaning
Yo	Me	Myself
Tú	Te	Yourself
Él/Ella/Usted	Se	Himself Herself Itself Yourself (formal)
Nosotros	Nos	Ourselves
Vosotros	Os	Yourselves
Ellos/Ellas/Ustedes	Se	Themselves Yourselves (formal)

In most tenses, the reflexive pronoun comes before the verb.

E.g. Me lavo – I wash Me lavé – I washed Me lavaré – I will wash Me lavaría – I would wash

When you are using the imperative, if you are telling someone to do something the reflexive pronoun is tagged on to the end of the verb. If you are telling someone not to do something, it comes between the negation and the verb.

E.g. ¡Sientate! – Sit down

¡No te vayas! – Don't go!

Still with the imperative, if you are using the nosotros or vosotros form of the imperative, you drop the last letter before you tag the reflexive pronoun on to the end of the verb.

E.g. ¡Vamonos! – Let's go!

¡Sentaos! – Sit down!

The reflexive pronoun is joined on to the end of infinitive and gerund (present participle) constructions.

Hay que levantarse a las siete durante la semana.

Estaba relajándose en el jardín cuando llamó.

When the infinitive or gerund (present participle) comes after another verb, you can either put the reflexive pronoun on to the end of the infinitive/gerund or before the first verb:

Quiero acostarme or me quiero acostar.

You can also use a reflexive pronoun with a verb to put it into the passive voice.

Se venden bebidas frescas aquí – Cold drinks are sold here

Se habla francés en Francia – French is spoken in France.

It can also be used as an impersonal expression which could translate into ‘you’ in English.

No se permite fumar aquí – You can't smoke here.

No se puede entrar sin permiso – You can't go in without permission.

Finally, nos, os and se can be used to mean each other and one another.

Nos escuchamos siempre – We always listen to each other.

Carlos y Pablo se odian – Carlos and Pablo hate each other.

Translate the sentences into Spanish:

1. When we go out, we always have fun with each other.
2. He showered and he brushed his teeth before he went out.
3. Wake up!
4. There are many different languages spoken in Europe.
5. Don't go to the beach today.
6. Sometimes I get bored at home on the weekend.
7. Don't worry yourself about the exam, you can do it!
8. He wants to relax before he goes to the party.
9. She was doing her hair when her boyfriend arrived.
10. You will have to go to bed early so that you are not tired.

7.2 Verbs like Gustar

Gustar works in a slightly ‘back to front’ way, as it doesn’t literally translate to ‘to like’, it literally means ‘to be pleasing to’. There are a few verbs in Spanish which work this way, so let’s look at a few of them, starting with gustar.

Me gusta el libro = I like the book
I is the subject of the sentence
Like is the verb
Book is the object

Literally

Me gusta el libro = The book pleases me
The book is the subject of the sentence and the direct object.
Like is the verb.
I is the indirect object of the sentence.

This is why we conjugate the verb into the ellos form when we are talking about more than one thing, because we are literally saying ‘The books, they please me’.

In the present tense, you will only ever use ‘gusta’ or ‘gustan’ as this is the direct object. The indirect object indicates the person affected and this is represented by the pronouns.

Me gusta el libro.
I like the book.

Te gusta el libro.
You like the book.

Nos gusta el libro.
We like the book.

Me gustan los libros.
I like the books.

Te gustan los libros.
You like the books.

Nos gustan los libros.
We like the books.

The book pleases me

The book pleases you

The book pleases us

The books please me

The books please you

The books please us

Le gusta la silla – Who likes the chair? Is it him or her? Due to the fact that él and ella have the same verb ending, in order to clarify, the sentence will begin with a prepositional phrase which removes the confusion. You can also use this for emphasis.

A él le gusta la silla.

He likes the chair.

A Juan le gusta la silla.

John likes the chair.

A ella le gusta la silla.

She likes the chair.

A María le gusta la silla.

Mary likes the chair.

A usted le gusta la silla.

You (formal) like the chair

¡Todo el mundo les gusta la silla, debería ser una silla maravillosa!

The following verbs all behave in the same way as ‘Gustar’:

Aburrir

Fascinar

Encantar

Faltar

Doler

Translate the following phrases into Spanish:

1. Our teachers are boring us a lot!
2. It appears to me that you are far more intelligent than you think.
3. Do you like the theatre or do you prefer the cinema?
4. They are missing one of their key workers and they cannot continue with the project.
5. You all love to receive gifts but you don't like donating money to charity! What a shame!
6. The dog fascinates them but the cat annoys them.
7. Are those shoes hurting your feet?

Unit 8

8.1 Possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives tell you that something belongs to someone in Spanish, e.g. my, your, his. There are two forms of possessive adjectives in Spanish. Short-form possessive adjectives are the most common, they must agree with the number and gender of the possessed thing, not of the possessor.

Pronoun	Masc. sing.	Fem. sing.	Masc. pl.	Fem. pl.
Yo	Mi	Mi	Mis	Mis
Tú	Tu	Tu	Tus	Tus
Él/Ella/Usted	Su	Su	Sus	Sus
Nosotros	Nuestro	Nuestra	Nuestros	Nuestras
Vosotros	Vuestro	Vuestra	Vuestros	Vuestras
Ellos/Ellas/Ustedes	Su	Su	Sus	Sus

Examples:

Mi amigo es muy interesante – My friend is very interesting.

Leí su libro ayer – I read his book yesterday.

Nuestros perros son muy traviesos pero nuestras tortugas son muy aburridas – Our dogs are very naughty but our tortoises are very boring.

When you are talking about body parts, abstract concepts or things that it's obvious that only the speaker could possess, in Spanish you do not use a possessive adjective but rather the definite article.

Me duele la cabeza – My head hurts.

Le gustan los pantalones nuevos – He likes his new trousers.

Me voy a la casa – I'm going home

Había perdido la ilusión por el proyecto – She had lost her enthusiasm for the project.

As there are so many translations of su, it can be useful to use a prepositional phrase using a name or personal pronoun instead. Remember that the structure for this is:

definite/indefinite article + possessed thing + de + pronoun / name of possessor

El cuarto de mi hermano – My brother's room

La casa de Miguel - Miguel's house

Londres es la capital de Inglaterra – London is the capital of England

The second type of possessive adjectives, long form possessive adjectives, are mainly used to emphasise who owns something, to contrast two owners or to emphasise a personal relationship. Again, they need to agree in number and gender with the possessed thing.

Pronoun	Masc. sing.	Fem. sing.	Masc. pl.	Fem. pl.
Yo	Mío	Mía	Míos	Mías
Tú	Tuyo	Tuya	Tuyos	Tuyas
Él/Ella/Usted	Suyo	Suya	Suyos	Suyas
Nosotros	Nuestro	Nuestra	Nuestros	Nuestras
Vosotros	Vuestro	Vuestra	Vuestros	Vuestras
Ellos/Ellas/Ustedes	Suyo	Suya	Suyos	Suyas

These possessive adjectives are placed after the noun that they modify, and you will often still use the definite article.

Estos son mis zapatos y aquellos son los zapatos tuyos – These are my shoes and those (ones) are your shoes.

Toma el mío – Take mine.

Tu hermana tiene un coche pero la mía no – Your sister has a car but mine doesn't.

Tu trabajo es bueno pero el nuestro es el mejor – Your work is good but ours is better.

Practice!

Translate the phrases into Spanish.

1. Our parents work in the hospital.
2. This is my book, the red book is yours.
3. Their garden is beautiful in the summer.
4. My sister's bedroom is the nicest room in the house.
5. Take his mobile phone.
6. There are two mobile phones. Take his.
7. I went to the doctor because my leg hurt.
8. Next week I am going to visit María's new house.
9. Your cooking is excellent, but hers is the best.
10. This computer isn't mine, it is hers.

8.2 Demonstrative adjectives – These point out people and things, match the noun in number and gender, are placed before the noun and can take the place of articles.

- Esta/Estas: This/These (feminine nouns)
- Ese/Esos: That/Those (masculine nouns)
- Esa/Esas: That/Those (feminine nouns)
- Aquel/Aquellos: That/Those over there (masculine nouns)
- Aquella/Aquellas: That/Those over there (feminine nouns)

8.3 Demonstrative pronouns

Demonstrative pronouns are the words that translate as 'this one / these ones' and 'that one / those ones'.

In Spanish they are:

éste / ésta (this one), éstos / éstas (these ones), ése / ésa (that one), aquél / aquélla (that one over there), ésos / ésas (those ones), aquéllos / aquéllas (those ones over there)

They are used instead of a noun, for example:

Éste es mi barrio. – This one is my neighbourhood.

Ésa es mi tienda favorita. – That one is my favourite shop.

Aquellos son nuestros vecinos. – Those ones over there are our neighbours.

Sometimes, demonstrative pronouns do not agree in number or gender with a noun. They represent an idea rather than a person or a thing, for example:

¿Qué es todo esto? What's all this?

Translate the following phrases into Spanish:

1. This is my house and that one over there is Antonio's.
2. That boy over there is my brother.
3. What is that?
4. This is my pen.
5. “Pedro lives in Madrid.” “Yes, I knew that.”

8.4 Direct object pronouns.

A direct object pronoun replaces the noun to which you are referring.

So, for example:

My house is very big and I bought my house three years ago. The garden has grown a lot in three years, I weed the garden every Sunday.

This doesn't sound very natural and stops the language from flowing. A direct object pronoun will make it sound less weird!

So, instead it would read:

My house is very big and I bought it three years ago. The garden has grown a lot in three years, I weed it every Sunday.

Remember: pronouns need to match the noun they replace.

Compro un libro. → Lo compro.

Compro los guantes. → Los compro.

Compro una gorra. → La compro.

Compro las gafas. → Las compro.

When using direct object pronouns with the present and preterite tenses, the pronoun goes before the verb. Can you find two examples of this in the texts above?

When using direct object pronouns with the near future tense and verbs like querer + infinitive, the pronoun can go in two different places:

- before ir and querer
→ lo voy a comprar, lo quiero comprar
- joined onto the infinitive at the end of the phrase → voy a comprarlo, quiero comprarlo

Translate these phrase into Spanish, then in each appropriate case, replace the noun with the correct direct object pronoun:

1. I am going to buy the mobile phone.
2. My mother thinks that she has seen the film before.
3. I doubt that I will have the money before next week.
4. My friend got the tattoo last week, she didn't tell her parents before she got the tattoo.
5. It seems obvious to me that university is extremely expensive, but I would enjoy university nonetheless.
6. Don't tell me how to do fix the problem! I know how to do that!
7. Last week I read three books, I didn't enjoy the books at all. I found the books to be extremely poorly written.
8. I think that excessive drinking is a stupid thing to do. I have never taken part in excessive drinking and I never will.
9. German is a subject I would like to study in the future, I have never studied German before but I think I might do well in the subject.
10. "You have brains in your head, you have feet in your shoes, you can steer yourself in any direction you choose."

8.5 Indirect object pronouns.

A direct object is the noun or pronoun that the verb acts directly on. In a sentence such as "I see Sam," "Sam" is the direct object of "see" because "Sam" is the object that is seen.

The difference between a direct object and an indirect object:

An indirect object is the person affected by the action but not acted directly upon.

In a sentence such as "I am writing Sam a letter," "Sam" is the indirect object. The item being written is "letter," so "letter" is the direct object. "Sam" is the indirect object as one who is affected by the verb's action on the direct object.

Here are the indirect-object pronouns along with their English equivalents and examples of their uses:

me — me — Juan me da una camisa. John is giving me a shirt.

te — you (singular familiar) — Juan te da una camisa. John is giving you a shirt.

le — you (singular formal), him, her — Juan le da una camisa a usted. John is giving you a shirt.

le — him/her Juan le da una camisa a él. John is giving him a shirt. Juan le da una camisa a ella. John is giving her a shirt.

nos — us — María nos da unas camisas. Mary is giving us some shirts.

os — you (plural familiar) — María os da unas camisas. Mary is giving you some shirts.

les — you (plural formal), them — María les da unas camisas. Mary is giving you some shirts, or Mary is giving them some shirts.

Translate the following phrases into Spanish, then replace both the direct and indirect object pronouns, for example; 1. She is cooking him it (it for him)

1. Mary is cooking him a meal.
2. I have cleaned the kitchen for you.
3. The boy delivers the newspapers to the residents.
4. There are twelve people singing the song to Grandpa.
5. Carlos is washing the car for you.
6. The boss is giving me and Bob a day off.
7. Javier plays football for them.
8. The teacher is talking to you all about Spanish.

Unit 10

10.1 Sinopsis de Volver

“Tres generaciones de mujeres sobreviven al viento solano, al fuego, a la locura, a la superstición e incluso a la muerte a base de bondad, mentiras y una vitalidad sin límites. Ellas son Raimunda (Penélope Cruz) casada con un obrero en paro y una hija adolescente de 14 años (Yohana Cobo). Sole (Lola Dueñas), su hermana, se gana la vida como peluquera. Y la madre de ambas, muerta en un incendio, junto a su marido (Carmen Maura). Este personaje se aparece primero a su hermana (Chus Lampreave) y después a Sole, aunque con quien dejó importantes asuntos pendientes fue con Raimunda y con su vecina del pueblo, Agustina (Blanca Portillo).

"Volver" no es una comedia surrealista, aunque en ocasiones lo parezca. Vivos y muertos conviven sin estridencias, provocando situaciones hilarantes o de una emoción intensa y genuina. Es una película sobre la cultura de la muerte en mi Mancha natal. Mis paisanos la viven con una naturalidad admirable. El modo en que los muertos continúan presentes en sus vidas, la riqueza y humanidad de sus ritos hace que los muertos no mueran nunca. "Volver" destruye los tópicos de la España negra y propone una España tan real como opuesta. Una España blanca, espontánea, divertida, intrépida, solidaria y justa."

10.2 Pedro Almodóvar Caballero

Pedro Almodóvar Caballero es un director de cine, guionista y productor español, el que mayor resonancia ha logrado fuera de dicho país, habiendo recibido los principales galardones cinematográficos internacionales, incluyendo dos premios Óscar, en diversas categorías. Ostenta la Orden de Caballero de la Legión de Honor francesa (1997), además de haber obtenido la Medalla de Oro al Mérito en las Bellas Artes (1998). Ha sido investido doctor "honoris causa" por la universidad estadounidense de Harvard en junio de 2009.

Nació el 24 de septiembre de 1951 en Calzada de Calatrava, un pueblecito de la provincia de Ciudad Real, en una familia de arrieros, con gran presencia de mujeres, cuyo mundo plasmaría en películas como Volver. Emigró luego a Madrigalejo \(Cáceres\) y estudió el Bachillerato en Cáceres capital con los padres salesianos y franciscanos, aficionándose al cine.

El cine de Almodóvar cultiva un naturalismo que destruye el usual costumbrismo burgués del cine español. Suele representar, por el contrario, una realidad marginal o del subproletariado urbano y abunda en elementos escandalosos y provocadores: policías corruptos, consumo de drogas, maltrato, prostitución, niños precoces, paletos filosóficos, marujas desesperadas, homosexualidad desgarrada, etc., todo ello sin renunciar a su humor irreverente y sin dejar de provocar con heterodoxas escenas de sexo.

En películas posteriores como ¡Átame!, clasificada inicialmente como X en Estados Unidos (a raíz de esta película, nació la clasificación americana NC-17, también adjudicada a La mala educación), una mujer llega a enamorarse de su secuestrador e incluso, según ataques de sectores reaccionarios de la sociedad española, en Kika llega incluso a trivializar la violación.

Almodóvar mezcla en sus películas lo tradicional y lo transgresor. Usa colores muy vivos y fuertemente contrastados y exteriores vulgares y degradados entre los intérpretes humanos y los entornos físicos de los edificios.

Intro to “Volver”

Almodóvar's 16th film, Volver (Return), is set in part in La Mancha. The film opens showing dozens of women furiously scrubbing the graves of their deceased, establishing the influence of the dead over the living as a key theme. The plot follows the story of three generations of women in the same family who survive wind, fire, and even death. The film is an ode to female resilience, where men are literally disposable.

Many of Almodóvar's stylistic hallmarks are present: the stand-alone song (a redemption of the Argentinian tango song "Volver"), references to reality TV, and an homage to classic film Volver started as a story of la España negra, or 'black Spain'--the rural, superstitious and conservative part of the country still often associated, the director says, with violence, tragedy, even backwardness: "It looks like they are living a century before. But I tried to demonstrate that the same Spain, in the same local places with the same local characters, could be called 'white Spain', because the neighbours are in complete solidarity, all the women join together and create a kind of family. The movie really talks about women who survive, women who fight fiercely.

10.3 Elementos del cine

Los elementos básicos del lenguaje del cine son:

1. la selección de partes de realidad (o planos)
2. los movimientos
3. el montaje
4. el sonido
5. el color

1. La selección de partes de realidad o planos

Etiqueta cada plano:

- a)
- b)
- c)
- d)
- e)
- f)
- g)

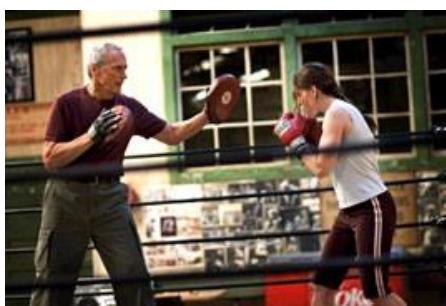

Gran Plano General – plano empleado para describir una gran extensión visual. La figura humana es imperceptible. Tiene un valor descriptivo y puede adquirir un valor dramático cuando se pretende destacar la soledad o la pequeñez del hombre frente al medio.

Plano General – plano empleado para describir, abarca una visión general, la figura humana aparece perceptible, contrariamente al gran plano general. Integra a los personajes en su ambiente. Se utiliza para comenzar una escena o para situar una acción.

Plano Entero - plano empleado para narrar, capta el cuerpo entero de una persona o grupo de personas

Plano Medio Largo o Americano – plano empleado para narrar, desde las rodillas hasta la cabeza

Plano Medio - plano empleado para narrar, desde la cintura hasta la cabeza

Plano Medio Corto o Busto - plano empleado para analizar, desde el pecho hasta la cabeza. Este plano nos permite aislar una sola figura dentro de un recuadro, y descontextualizarla de su entorno para concentrar en ella la máxima atención.

Primer Plano - plano empleado para analizar, desde los hombros hasta la cabeza. se corresponde con una distancia íntima, ya que sirve para mostrar confidencia e intimidad respecto al personaje.

Primerísimo Primer Plano – plano empleado para analizar, desde la barbilla hasta la parte superior de la cabeza. Tiene el mismo efecto que el primer plano.

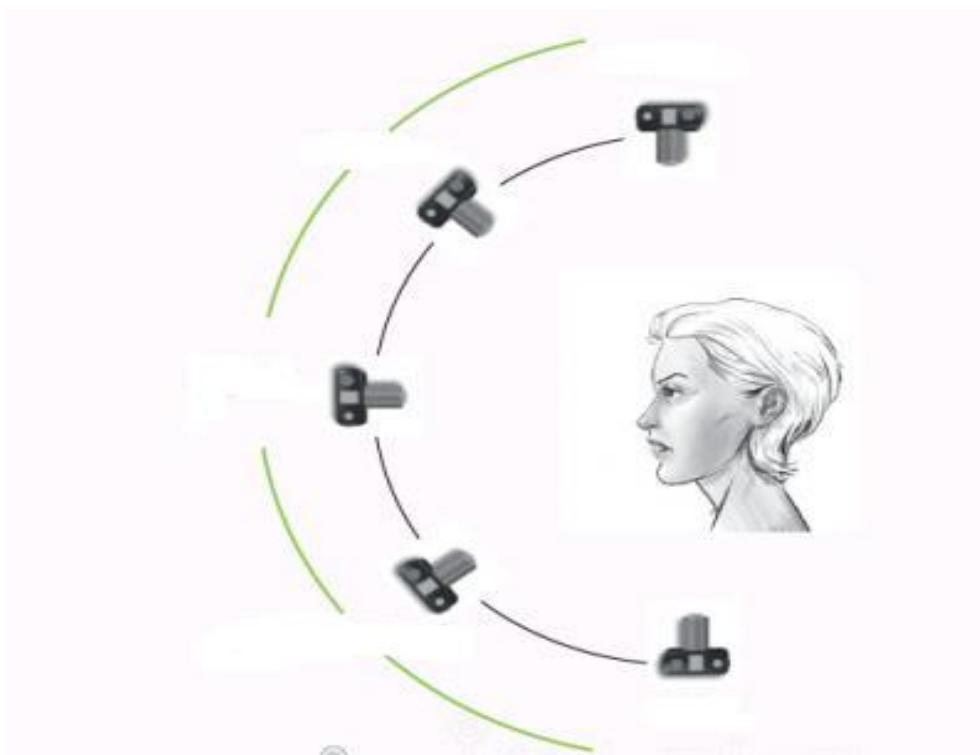

Plano Detalle - plano empleado para analizar, muestra un aspecto muy concreto de un objeto o una parte muy concreta del cuerpo humano.

Plano Particular – Presenta un objeto o parte del cuerpo aislado

Planos según su ángulo

Completa la imagen

Plano en Picado: Cuando la cámara está sobre el objeto, en un cierto ángulo. El objeto está visto desde arriba. Suele emplearse a veces para destacar aspectos psicológicos, de poder, etc.

Plano en contrapicado: Al contrario que el anterior, la cámara se coloca bajo el objeto, destacando este por su altura.

Plano frontal: Cuando la cámara está en el mismo plano que el objeto.

Plano cenital: Cuando la cámara se encuentra en la vertical respecto del suelo y la imagen obtenida ofrece un campo de visión orientado de arriba a abajo.

Plano Nadir: Es una posición de cámara desde la vertical inferior del objeto o persona.

2. Los movimientos

El cine no toma sólo imágenes. Filma sobre todo, movimientos. La gran fuerza expresiva del film está precisamente en su multiplicidad dinámica, en los numerosos tipos de movimientos que son posibles en él.

En la siguiente página web puedes encontrar vídeos ilustrativos de los diferentes movimientos de la cámara. <http://www.lenguajeaudiovisual.com/MOVIMIENTOS.html>

1. - LA PANORÁMICA: Es la rotación de la cámara sobre su propio eje. La cámara está situada normalmente en un trípode.

Su función principal es relacionar a elementos dentro del cuadro. También pone en relación los elementos que hay en el campo y fuera del campo inmediato.

2. - BARRIDO: Es una Panorámica tan rápida que no tenemos tiempo a ver con nitidez las imágenes que se recogen. Se usa sobre todo como transición: mareo, recuerdo, intercambio de miradas, para mostrar acciones paralelas.

3. - TRAVELLING: Movimiento de la cámara en un espacio tridimensional. La cámara está situada normalmente en una grúa. Se usa sobretodo para situaciones en que se necesita un acercamiento o alejamiento al motivo.

4.- ZOOM: También llamado TRAVELLING ÓPTICO. La cámara no se mueve.

Este video muestra la variedad de planos utilizados en las películas de Almodóvar.

3. El montaje

Montar o editar es el proceso mediante el cual seleccionamos planos, ordenamos y modificamos su forma y contenido; con el fin de esclarecer su discurso narrativo o estético. Para ellos se seleccionan los planos, basándonos en ciertas condiciones de contenido, de orden y de tiempo. La manera de colocar los diversos planos puede cambiar completamente el sentido, y por lo tanto el mensaje, de una película.

- Kulechov descubrió que el orden en la yuxtaposición de planos de actores, con otros objetos, podrían modificar sustancialmente el significado del mensaje.
- Tres públicos diferentes vieron el primer plano del actor Mosjukhin, junto a otros tres planos completamente diferentes: un plato de comida, un féretro y una niña pequeña. El primer público lo encontró pensativo, el segundo triste, el tercero complacido.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=grCPqoFwp5k>

El montaje tiene un efecto directo sobre el ritmo fílmico.

Ritmo fílmico

Es una sensación producida por la repetición de elementos icónicos (movimiento, espacio, composición, tiempo, ángulo, escala, color, etc., de la imagen) en cada plano, escena y secuencia durante un mismo o en distintos tiempos, conforme a la cronología impuesta por el contenido semántico del film.

El ritmo es una impresión dinámica creada por:

- la duración de los planos
- por las intensidades dramáticas
- por efecto del montaje

El ritmo del cine es una unidad compuesta por tres ritmos: el visual interno o externo (de la imagen), el auditivo (del sonido) estudia la realidad de forma analítica o sintética, y el narrativo (representado por el desarrollo de la acción y encuadre).

Algunos ejemplos de efectos de montaje:

4. El sonido

El sonido del cine se compone de los siguientes elementos significativos:

- La música: Es un gran medio de expresión cinematográfica. Su uso es variado: canción, música de fondo, creador de una atmósfera particular o psíquica (dolor, alegría, soledad, amor libertad, odio...), sustituto del sonido real o del pasado, continuación de un sonido, etc.

- El diálogo: La palabra tiene su función propia como en la vida. Debe ser utilizada como un elemento integrador y de apoyo, su misión es subsidiaria, la regla de oro es “Nunca diga la palabra lo que presenta la imagen visual”.
- Efectos Sonoros: Son como el fondo sonoro de la vida llevado a la pantalla con finalidad realista. Debe ser fiel evocador de un ambiente sonoro, psicológico, simbólico y dramático.
- Silencio: Se utiliza para mostrar situaciones límites de sufrimiento, angustia, soledad, peligro, miedo, etc. Su función es la de subrayar, evocar y dar especial valor a la acción, al sonoro, y los sonidos que le han precedido.

5. El color y la iluminación

El color proporciona mayor adecuación a la realidad, ya que el mundo es en colores, y una más amplia libertad para el juego de carácter creativo. El color sirve para centrar la atención, favorecer el ritmo en la narración y en el montaje, y expresar con más fuerza ciertos momentos.

El color posee tres funciones fundamentales:

- Función realista descriptiva del color: Describe la realidad de la cosa representada, sin añadir ninguna idea. Pretende reproducir el color de la realidad, tal como es o como lo percibimos. Cabe distinguir los usos pictórico, decorativo e histórico.
- Función narrativa dramática: El color narra, presenta y destaca cierto dramatismo. El color se convierte en el punto de atención.
- Función expresiva del color: Expresa la idea del comunicante acerca del tema representado. Es la expresión de la imagen representada. Su valor semántico procede de un doble factor, según las funciones del color:
 - Simbología: La función expresiva del color es fundamentalmente simbólico psicológica.
 - Colores Expresivos: La expresividad del color viene o procede del hecho de que sean colores fríos o colores cálidos.

El color y la perspectiva

Los colores cálidos dan impresión de proximidad, y los fríos de lejanía. También influye el valor de la intensidad tonal de cada color: los valores altos, iluminados, sugieren grandiosidad, lejanía, vacío... Los valores bajos, poco iluminados, sugieren aproximación.

Los fondos iluminados y claros intensifican los colores, dan ambiente de alegría y los objetos tienen más importancia en su conjunto. Los fondos oscuros debilitan los colores, entristecen los objetos que se difuminan y pierden importancia en el conjunto.

El color no es solamente un adorno. Se logra mediante el buen uso del color aumentar o reducir la expresividad del film. El color puede crear la atmósfera adecuada para la recepción de nuestro mensaje. Los colores tienen significado; por lo tanto, es conveniente usar el color apropiado para cada tema. Los significados típicos de los colores son:

- Negro: formal, nítido, rico, fuerte, elegante.
- Azul: frío, melancolía, deprimido, tranquilidad, serenidad.
- Rojo: amor pasional, ira, odio.
- Rosado: ternura
- Anaranjado: festivo, alegre, energía, salud.
- Amarillo: tibieza, luz, madurez.
- Verde: fresco, en crecimiento, joven.
- Blanco: pureza, limpio nítido.

La luz filmica

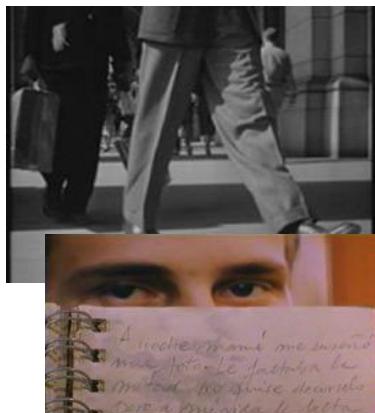

La luz es un elemento imprescindible para el lenguaje cinematográfico. Sin luz no hay cine. Según la dirección de la luz al iluminar un objeto o persona se puede clasificar en:

Luz Cenital: El punto luminoso está colocado sobre la persona

Luz Enfática: Si procede de un punto de luz bajo

Luz Lateral: La luz proviene de un punto lateral, del costado.

Luz Frontal: Si el punto luminoso queda situado frente al objeto o zona a ilumina

Contraluz: El foco o fuente luminosa queda colocado detrás
