

Eventually, Kamune arrived at the shadowy depths of the emerged lair where the beast was held. Spikes vibrated and a fire crackled in the distance. Kamune quivered. Silently but deadly Kamune dragged himself into the lair. Because there was so much smoke Kamune was bumping into the walls. It was like he was playing bumper cars. Whilst he was walking the cave thumped. It was like the cave was going to collapse. Kamune's legs buckled and he fell to the floor with a CRUNCH and a CRACK!

Kamune smelt the rotten flesh of the ugly beast. He could also feel the wall vibrating. It was getting wider and wider and then suddenly it got thinner and thinner and then found himself on his hands and knees. Where is she? What happened? How did I get onto the floor?