

After weeks of adventurous events Athena finally arrived at the famous Bossags lair! She ventured on towards the dungeon like lair! Knees trembling, Heart beating as fast as a rocket! Athena took one step closer and she was in! It smelt like sweaty socks and the ground was gritty. She took one glimpse back over the horizon thinking it might be the last beautiful look of her life. She looked back towards the horrendous mess of a cave. There was one small narrow path with scorching, fiery lava beside it. One tiny noise and she would be done for. She walked on jumping over scattered bones and dodging dangling cobwebs! Although she seemed scared and worried her still had at least one ounce of courage left in her muscular, powerful body? Her hair brushed against the rocky, moss covered wall and she soon felt the misty air as she whipped her back in her possession. You are probably wondering how a Mohawk can whip back at this point it had fell down! She carried on her treacherous journey. Heart pounding. Knees trembling. Suddenly, she heard a SNAP! Athena looked down towards her feet! There it was a broken bone! She heard a loud ROAR! It was Bossag
