

Deep in the Amazon rainforest

As Tepui entered the steamy rainforest, he couldn't believe what he saw. High above the emergent layer, about 30 macaws, which were streaking the sky red, to dance slowly to the ground.

Not far from the birds, a troop of howler monkeys had a fearsome battle against rival-like monkeys. After only a few were left standing. Not far from all that, a few peaceful sloths were being slower than a snail had a race which would take hours to take place began.

Far below, a stealthy jaguar started to hunt. It padded silently and camouflaged in to the dappled light. .ready to pounce. Suddenly an unsuspecting anteater got attacked and the jaguar was satisfied.

Down in the depths of the dark and musty river, a piranha which had a red stomach and blue body stalked an unsuspecting victim.

All around the rainforest, he could smell fragrant plants and hear the canopy's cacophony.

By Ben

