

Deep in the Amazon rainforest

As Tepui wandered into the rainforest, a jaguar was camouflaged by his spotted coat.

When Tepui passed by the jaguar, it stealthily prowled up on its prey. Then it leapt from the bushes. As the jaguar leapt, the sloth in the understory was holding onto a branch on a tree and was very slow. In the river, a squad of piranhas went for fish and kelp. On a thick tree, a boa constrictor was wrapped around a tree trunk waiting for a cock of the rock to be prey. Then the deadly beast hissed and strangled the bird and swallowed him. Then Tepui saw the kapok tree which is the lungs of the earth because it produces oxygen. Then he looked at the trees in the canopy which had vines like a power line. As he went on, he saw a fly trap and a fly came along and the plant ate the fly. A scarlet macaw had feathers like a colourful rainbow.
