

Deep in the Amazon rainforest

As Tepui wondered deeper into the Amazon rainforest, he experienced wondrous sights. He spotted a jaguar which pounced on an unexpected fly and ate it. As he walked along the dappled floor, he saw a caiman.

A caiman, who had razor sharp teeth, was chewing on a predatory snake which had scaly skin. The vicious caiman was approaching out of the Amazon River and at that moment it was eating a snake. In the trees, there were humming birds singing.

In the umbrella-like canopy, where birds, bats and butterflies lived, a three-toed sloth was swinging from vine to vine.
