

Deep in the Amazon rainforest

As Tepui wandered deeper into the rainforest he experienced wondrous sights. In the canopy, a spider monkey was leaping from tree to tree to eat plants. On a branch, a jaguar padded to an anteater. Above the jaguar, a 3 toed sloth was gently carrying its baby. On the forest floor, a titanic anaconda was crushing a caiman to death. In the air a scarlet macaw soared like a fiery meteor.

In the river, a group of piranhas made their way to a dead capybara. Beside the piranhas, a caiman was being attacked by a spotted jaguar. Up in the canopy, a group of howler monkeys made deafening ear piercing screams. Down on the forest floor, a boa constrictor was making its way to a group of mice. Beside the snake, a Venus fly trap was waiting for its next victim. Suddenly a fly went closer. Then it was eaten whole. In the understory, an ocelot was eating the remains of a dead boa constrictor.
