

Deep in to the Amazon rainforest

Landing softly on the forest floor, a green tree frog leapt down off a dead tree. It had long legs and dare devil like eyes. A couple of trees away, there was a beautiful lake that was the same shape as a boa constrictor. In the lake, was a group of vicious piranhas that looked like a big megladon. Their teeth were like knives on top of one another. If it bit your hand, it will come off and you will have no hand left. Up high in the canopy, there was a tree porcupine, which was spiky like a cactus. On its belly, a baby porcupine was crying for some food for tea. Further up the emergent layer, there was a big stream of red. It looked like a meteor and it was a beautiful flock of scarlet red macaws. On a log, a three toed sloth was eating a grape and he took so long to eat it, a jaguar ate four monkeys in that time. Next to the lake, there was a bird of prey plant and it smelt like a fragrant perfume.

On the floor, a jaguar then licked its baby so that it had no germs and so it was clean.

Near the jaguar, there was a Venus fly trap which was trying to eat a fly but the fly got away so that it didn't die.

By Evan

