

KEY VOCABULARY

recycle

upcycle

pollution

globalisation

'fast fashion'

'sustainable fashion'

appliqué

embroidery

seam

hem

to turn used things into something new to take an old, disused product and make it into something new

the introduction of harmful materials into the environment the worldwide interaction of people, governments and companies the design, manufacturing and selling of clothes focused on producing a very large number of clothes very cheaply, sometimes creating waste and pollution

when designers and manufacturers try not to use methods and resources which create pollution but instead use environmentally friendly ways of producing clothes where pieces of fabric are sewn onto a larger piece to create a picture or a pattern – overcast stitch can be used to make appliqué a technique where pictures or patterns are made by stitches on fabric

a line where two pieces of fabric are joined together usually by stitching – running stitch can be used to create a seam where fabric is folded over and held in place by stitching the fold, to stop the edges of the fabric from fraying (unravelling) – backstitch can be used to create a hem

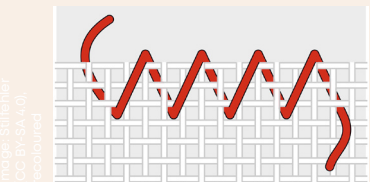

stitches

running stitch

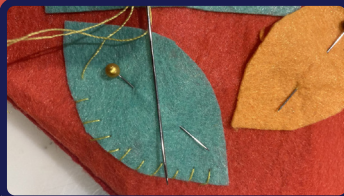

backstitch

overcast stitch (or whip stitch)

using backstitch
to make an
embroidered line

using overcast
stitch to sew on appliqué shapes

examples
of upcycled
t-shirts /
shirts

making a design

user
who is the product for?

function
what is the product for?

aesthetic appeal
how is the design of the product pleasing to look at?