Dear Parents,

NSPCC Number's Day

We are delighted to announce that author and 'Mathemagician', Andrew Jeffrey, will be visiting our school on 8th February to perform his Magic of Maths show. Andrew is in demand internationally as one of the country's leading speakers in the field of primary mathematics education. His books, articles and Magic Maths shows have been featured in numerous education journals and on UK Television.

Andrew is the founder of Maths Week England, the world's largest national maths festival. He has been a teacher and consultant for over twenty years and is also a professional magician. Find out more from Andrew's website at <http://www.andrewjeffrey.co.uk/>.

Andrew will be performing his motivational show, the Magic of Maths, to all the children in school on Thursday. He will also be bringing copies of his book, Magic for Kids. But this is not the kind of book you could buy in WH Smith! This is a professionally designed and printed full-colour book of 25 fun magic tricks, most of which use simple but clever mathematical principles to make them work. Your child will learn to perform magic and be doing maths at the same time!

Andrew is keen to stress that it is NOT necessary to buy the book to watch and enjoy the shows. The book is primarily aimed at children in Year 2 upwards, and not just the maths whizzes!

Although the book normally costs £10, you have the opportunity to pre-order signed copies for only £6. Better still, Andrew is donating £1 to the NSPCC for each book purchased using the private link.

To take advantage of this offer, here's what you need to do:
