

Pupil feedback to geographical learning:

One method that pupils can reflect on their learning is through responding to their teacher's marking. Here is an example of a piece of work where a pupil has reflected on the learning that has taken place and used this to answer a question:

Another method that pupils can reflect on their learning is by giving feedback to their peers. This can be done by peer-assessing their work using our 'Be Kind, Be Specific, Be Helpful' motto. Here is an example of this:

Another way is through having pupil voice on displays. Here is an example of how a pupil identified what geographical learning took place in a lesson.
