

A Parent Guide to Reading

Year 6

Introduction

At Fairfield, first and foremost, we want to promote the love of reading. There is strong evidence linking reading for pleasure and educational outcomes. We all know that academic attainment is important, but the benefits of reading for pleasure go beyond this and stretch throughout a person's life. Research has found that reading for pleasure can result in increased empathy, improved relationships with others, reductions in the symptoms of stress and depression, and improved well-being. In addition to the health benefits, reading for pleasure has social benefits and can improve our sense of connectedness to the wider community. Reading increases our understanding of our own identity, helps us understand and share our feelings, and gives us an insight into the world view of others. So how do you get your child to switch off the TV or put down the games console remote and pick up a book instead? This information leaflet provides you with advice on what reading is; benefits of reading for children; national curriculum expectations; how parents can support reading for pleasure at home and help children to achieve well in their KS2 Reading SATs.

What is Reading?

Reading is the ability to make meaning from print.

The process of reading includes:

- Word recognition: Ability to identify the written symbols/text in print.
- Comprehension: To understand the printed words and grasp the knowledge of the information.
- Fluency: Synchronising word recognition and comprehension to make reading accurate and automatic.

Benefits of Reading for Children

There are multiple other benefits that reading can have on a child's development, including:

1. Assisted cognitive development: Cognitive development refers to how we perceive and think about our world in reference to our intelligence, reasoning, language development, and information processing. By reading to children, you provide them with a deep understanding about their world and fill their brains with background knowledge. They then use this acquired background knowledge to make sense of what they see, hear, and read, which aids their cognitive development.
2. Developing empathy: When we read a book, we put ourselves in the story in front of us. This allows us to develop empathy as we experience the lives of other characters and can identify with how they are feeling. Children can then use this understanding to empathise in the real world with other people. Additionally, children will gain a greater understanding of emotions, which can help them understand their own emotions and those of others. This helps dramatically with their social development.

3. Gaining deeper understanding: A book can take us anywhere- to another city, to a different country, or even to an alternative world! By reading a book, a child learns about people, places, and events that they couldn't learn otherwise. This gives children a deeper understanding of the world around them and cultures that are different from their own.
4. Building stronger relationships: If you, as a parent, read with your child on a regular basis, then you will undoubtedly develop a stronger relationship with them. Reading provides parents with an opportunity to have a regular and shared event that both parent and child can look forward to. Furthermore, it provides children with feelings of attention, love, and reassurance which is key for nurturing and wellbeing.
5. Improved literary skills: Reading aloud with young children, even if they can't fully understand what you are saying, gives them the skills they need for when they begin to read by themselves. It shows children that reading is something achieved by focusing from left to right and that turning pages is essential for continuing. Reading to children in even the earliest months of their lives can help with language acquisition and stimulating the part of the brain that processes language.
6. More extensive vocabulary: Hearing words spoken aloud can expose children to a range of new vocabulary and phrases that they may not have heard otherwise. By reading to your child daily, they'll learn new words every single day.
7. Greater concentration. Regular and consistent reading can help to improve a child's concentration abilities. Furthermore, it will help a child learn to sit still and listen for long periods of time, which will benefit them in their schooling.
8. Higher levels of creativity and imagination. Reading a book relies on us using our imagination for picturing characters, visualising their settings and environment, and guessing what's coming next. We must use our imagination if we are to learn about other people, places, events, and times. In turn, this developed imagination leads to greater creativity as children use the ideas in their heads to inform their work.

Finally, the more that a child is read to, and the more that they read themselves, the better they will become at it. Practice really does make perfect and, the more a child reads, the better their overall academic achievement and social skills, like empathy, will be.

Research shows that young people who enjoy reading very much are three times more likely to read above the level expected for their age than young people who do not enjoy reading at all.

National Curriculum Expectations

By Year 6, pupils should be able to accurately read aloud a wide range of fiction, non-fiction and poetry texts fluently. They should be able to read most words effortlessly and work out the pronunciation of unfamiliar written words with increasing automaticity. If the pronunciation sounds unfamiliar, pupils in Year 6 should independently ask for help in determining both the meaning of the word and how to pronounce it correctly.

Year 6 pupils should be able to read texts aloud with appropriate intonation to show their understanding. They should be able to summarise and present a familiar story in their own words. They should be reading widely and frequently for pleasure and to retrieve information, outside of school as well as in school. Moreover, it is expected that Year 6 children can read silently with good understanding. They should be able to infer the meanings of unfamiliar words and then discuss what they have read.

During Year 6, pupils should continue to expand their vocabulary through exposure to stories, plays, poetry, non-fiction and textbooks, both read by them and to them by others. They should be given the opportunity to be read to – hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and having a chance to talk about this increases their fluency, expression and intonation. Their confidence, enjoyment and mastery of language should be extended through public speaking, performance and debate.

By the end of Year 6, your child’s reading should be sufficiently fluent and effortless enabling them to manage the general demands of the curriculum in Year 7, across all subjects, in order for them to access and understand the necessary subject-specific vocabulary.

What this means for Parents/Guardians

- Read every day for at least 20 minutes.
- Try to give your child access to plenty of texts on many different topics and encourage them to read a wide range of authors, who write in different styles.
- Encourage discussion with your child when pronouncing new words if their reasonable attempt doesn’t sound right.
- Try to broaden the vocabulary you use when speaking with your child and be ready to clarify the meaning of a wider range of words- modelling them in sentences. <https://www.yourdictionary.com> is an excellent website for definitions, synonyms and seeing words in a sentence.
- Encourage your child to read silently to themselves as well as reading aloud. Reading aloud allows the child to practise fluency, expression and intonation.
- Read difficult texts or texts by authors they might not choose themselves to your child and allow them the chance to listen and ask questions. Reading to your child also helps them to understand how to use expression to bring stories to life and develop their own voice as readers. Use audio books available from the library or Amazon Audible.
- Teach your child to use contents and index pages within reference books and non-fiction so that they can retrieve information, and frequently ask them to do so.
- Check their understanding of what they have read. Ask them some of the questions from the grid below.

Year 6 children are expected to:	To support this, you could say/ask:
apply their knowledge of root words, prefixes and suffixes, both to read aloud and to understand the meaning of new words they meet	Can you find a word which begins with the prefix dis-? What does the prefix anti- mean? So, what could this new word mean?
maintain positive attitudes to reading and an understanding of what they have read	Did you enjoy that book? Why?

	What kind of text would you like to read next? What is your favourite genre? e.g. adventure, horror, sci-fi etc.
continue to read and discuss a wide range of fiction, poetry, plays, non-fiction, reference books and textbooks	What did you think about...? Have you ever read a ... poem?
increase their familiarity with a wide range of books, including myths, legends, traditional stories, modern fiction, fiction from our literary heritage and books from other cultures and traditions	What type of story is this? Have you ever read a ...? Let's go to the library and see if we can find a book from... What other cultures would you like to read about?
read books which are structured in different ways and written for a range of purposes	Can you see any subheadings in this text? Why are they used? What organisational feature is this?
recommend books that they have read to their peers, giving reasons for their choices	Would you recommend it? Who do you think would like this book? What makes it so good?
identify and discuss themes (such as loss or heroism) and conventions (such as the use of the first person in diary entries) in and across a wide range of writing	Can you see a theme running through this story? What is it? How often is it mentioned? How does this text differ from a story?
make comparisons within and across books	Is that what ... said had happened too? How is ... similar to...? Do they differ?
learn a wider range of poetry by heart	Can you recite...?
prepare and perform poems and plays out loud, showing an understanding through intonation, tone and volume so that meaning is clear to the audience	Think about your voice when you read that; how might the character speak?
check that the book makes sense to them; discussing their understanding and exploring the meaning of new words in a context	Tell me about what you have just read. Were there any words you didn't quite understand? The word... means...; in a sentence it's...
ask questions to improve their understanding	Is there anything you don't understand that you want to ask about?
draw inferences, such as inferring characters' feelings, thoughts and motives from their actions, and justify inferences with evidence	How do you think... is feeling? What makes you say that? Show me in the text. Why do you think... acted in that way?
predict what might happen from details stated and implied	What might...? What makes you think that? Show me in the text.
summarise the main ideas drawn from more than one paragraph, identifying key details that support the main idea	What theme can we see across these paragraphs? Is anything mentioned more than once?
identify how language, structure and presentation contribute to meaning	Why is this text set out this way? How does this help you as a reader?

discuss and evaluate how authors use language, including figurative language, and consider the impact on the reader	Can you find an example of (similes/metaphors/personification) on this page? Why might the author write in this way?
distinguish between statements of fact and opinion	Do you think... is a fact or an opinion? How do you know?
retrieve, record and present information from non-fiction texts	Find the part of the text about... What does... mean?
participate in discussions about books that are read to them and those they can read themselves, building on their own and others' ideas and challenging views courteously	I think that... do you agree? Why do you agree/disagree? Tell me your opinion on... I don't agree, I think that... In my opinion...
explain and discuss their understanding of what they have read, including through formal presentations and debates, maintaining a focus on the topic and using notes where necessary	Over the holidays, I would like you to plan a presentation for me on ... Can you explain to me why... is the best snack? I think it is ... Let's debate it. Can you think of three reasons why...?
provide reasoned justification for their views	Why do you think that? What evidence support that idea?

Key Stage 2 Reading SATs

- The reading test is a single paper with questions based on three passages of texts.
- The test will last for one hour (including reading time).
- There will be a total of 50 marks available.
- There will be a range of texts including fiction, non-fiction and poetry. (Approximately 1500 – 2300 words)

There will be a selection of question types, including:

- Ranking/ordering, e.g. 'Number the events below to show the order in which they happen in the story'
- Labelling, e.g. 'Label the text to show the title of the story'
- Find and copy, e.g. 'Find and copy one word that suggests what the weather is like in the story'
- Short constructed response, e.g. 'What does the bear eat?'
- Open-ended response, e.g. 'Look at the sentence that begins Once upon a time. How does the writer increase the tension throughout this paragraph? Explain fully, referring to the text in your answer.'

Preparation for SATs

- Encourage them to read regularly. This should include a range of fiction as well as non-fiction texts, such as leaflets, newspapers and information books. Suggest that they try a different author or genre every couple of weeks to broaden their reading experience.
- Reading stamina is needed for the test, so encourage them to tackle longer passages and also check how long it takes them to read different texts carefully.
- Practice booklets with example questions can be helpful to prepare your child for giving written answers and to help them with timing issues.

- Talk about what they have read. There are some suggestions of ideas and questions to use at <https://home.oxfordowl.co.uk/at-school/primaryschool-assessment-tests/ks2-sats/ks2-sats-reading/>
