History Curriculum Intent

At Gagle Brook Primary and Nursery School, the history curriculum will be delivered well with clear progression shown throughout the whole school.

The teaching of good quality history lessons will help pupils to understand the complexity of people's lives, the process of change, the diversity of societies and relationships between different groups, as well as their own identity and the challenges of their own time. Children will be aware of the impact of history within Britain including their local area.

We will ensure that the children develop the progressive skills of a historian throughout their time at Gagle Brook and do not just learn a series of facts about the past.

Principles

At Gagle Brook Primary and Nursery School we aim:

- To instil in the children a curiosity and understanding of events, places and people in a variety of times and environments.
- To develop an interest in the past and an appreciation of human achievements and aspirations
- To understand the values of our society
- To learn about the major issues and events in the history of our own country and of the world and how these events may have influenced one another
- To develop a knowledge of chronology within which the children can organise their understanding of the past
- To understand how the past was different from the present and that people of other times and places may have had different values and attitudes from ours
- To understand the nature of evidence by emphasising the process of enquiry and by developing the range of skills required to interpret primary and secondary source materials
- To distinguish between historical facts and the interpretation of those facts
- To understand that events have a multiplicity of causes and that historical explanation is provisional, debatable and sometimes controversial

Teaching and Learning

At Gagle Brook Primary and Nursery School, we ensure that our History curriculum is planned for and delivered using the six principles of learning providing rich opportunities for challenge, explanation, modelling, practice, questioning and feedback. We have high expectations for all pupils, all of the time. We encourage students to be resilient, question, have time to practice a skill and we support them in responding to modelling, feedback and critique so they can improve their work and learning behaviours. We like them to be inspired by the excellent work of others. Challenge is the key driver of everything we do.

History is taught both as a discrete subject and through cross curricular topics based on a 'big question' approach. We plan our topics around six open ended topic questions linking to a range of curriculum areas.

The History curriculum is delivered using the National Curriculum 2014 and the Early Learning Goals are followed to ensure continuity and progression from the Foundation Stage through to the National Curriculum. The children undertake a broad and balanced programme that takes account of abilities, aptitudes and physical, emotional and intellectual development. Through history the children learn a range of skills, concepts, attitudes and methods of working.

Early Years

History is taught in nursery and reception as an integral part of the topic work through child-initiated and adult led activities. The children are given the opportunity to find out about past and present events in their own lives, and those of their families and other people they know. In the Foundation stage history makes a significant contribution to developing a child's understanding of the world through activities such as looking at pictures of famous people in history or discovering the meaning of new and old in relation to their own lives.

Key Stage 1

During Key Stage 1, pupils learn about people's lives and lifestyles. They find out about significant men, women, children and events from the recent and more distant past in Britain and the wider world. They listen, and respond to stories and use sources of information to help them ask and answer questions. They learn how the past is different from the present.

Key Stage 2

During Key Stage 2 pupils learn about significant people, events and places from both recent and more distant past. They learn about change and continuity in their own area, in Britain and in other parts of the world. They look at history in a variety of ways, for example from political, economic, technological and scientific, social, religious, cultural or aesthetic perspectives. They use different sources of information to help them investigate the past both in depth and in overview, using dates and historical vocabulary to describe events, people and developments. They also learn that the past can be represented and interpreted in different ways.

There are children of differing ability in all classes at Gagle Brook Primary and Nursery School. We recognise this fact and provide suitable learning opportunities for all children by matching the challenge of the task to the ability of the child. We achieve this through a range of strategies. In the majority of lessons, children will begin at different starting points carefully chosen to enable them to progress and attain.

The History Curriculum and planning

At Gagle Brook Primary School, history is taught through a big question topic approach alongside other foundation subjects. Our curriculum is carefully planned over a two year cycle to engage and excite all our learners. Our long-term and medium-term plans map out the skills and themes covered each term for each key stage. These plans define what we will teach and ensure an appropriate balance and distribution of work across each term. Planning is always shared with all the adults who work in the classroom.

Cross-curricular links

The skills that children develop in History are linked to, and applied in, every subject of our curriculum. The children's skills in reading, writing, speaking and listening enable them to communicate and express themselves in all areas of their work in school. There are many resources for History and also cross-curricular resources to support the teaching of History.

Teaching History to children with special educational needs

At our school we teach History to all children, whatever their ability. History forms part of the school curriculum policy to provide a broad and balanced education to all children. Through our History teaching, we provide learning opportunities that enable all pupils to make progress. We do this by setting suitable learning challenges for all and responding to each child's different needs. Assessment against the National Curriculum allows us to consider each child's attainment and progress.

When progress falls significantly outside the expected range, the child may have special educational needs. Our assessment process looks at a range of factors – classroom organisation, teaching materials, teaching style, differentiation – so that we can take some additional or different action to enable the child to learn more effectively. This ensures that our teaching is matched to the child's needs.

Performance

History is led not only by the humanities team but by all teaching staff across the school and each year time is set aside to review standards and monitor curriculum provision and ensure training and resources are up to date.

Teachers constantly assess children's work in History. They use assessments to measure progress against the key objectives and to help them plan for the next unit of work.

The Humanities curriculum champion keeps examples of moderated children's work from staff meetings in a file. Any issues that arise from moderation staff meetings are addressed by the Humanities team through either CPD courses or team intervention.

Resources

We have a wide range of text books and interactive boards to access the internet as a class. Visits are planned to enhance learning and give hands on activity. People with an interest, or expertise, in a particular topic or area of history could be invited into school to work with the children. These might be parents, grandparents, other family members, neighbours or representatives of the local community.

Monitoring and review

Monitoring of the standards of the children's work and of the quality of teaching in History is the responsibility of the History curriculum champion team. The work of this team involves supporting colleagues in the teaching of History, being informed about current developments in the subject, and providing a strategic lead and direction for the subject in the school. The History curriculum champion team create an impact plan with a clear focus on the curriculum intent, how and when actions will be implemented and impact of these actions. The impact plans are reviewed regularly by the History curriculum champion and the senior leadership team.
