

Cyberbullying Facts | Article | For parents

According to the Ditch the Label UK 2014 Survey 45% of young people experience cyberbullying before the age of 18. It is very important therefore that everyone is aware of the steps involved in dealing with cyberbullying.

Here are our 10 steps to deal with cyberbullying.

STEP 1: Stay Calm

The first thing you must do is breathe. It might be good to walk away from your device or the social networking site where the cyberbullying is happening. Take time out. Remember that bullies usually have their own problems and are trying to make themselves feel better by attacking you. Nothing that they say is true.

STEP 2: Don't Reply

It is very important that you do not engage with the cyberbully. They are looking to infuriate you, aggravate you but more than that, they want you to respond to them. So NEVER give a cyberbully what they want. Ignore the comments and/or messages.

STEP 3: Take Screenshots

Do not delete any of the abuse you receive online. If you need to share your story with a trusted adult, your school or a law enforcement agency, they may need proof of the cyberbullying in order to action. To screenshot a message on a laptop or PC press Shift and Print Screen, on a Mac press Command, Shift and the number 3. On an Apple phone or iPad press the lock button and the home button at the same time. On an android phone or tablet hold the power and volume button at the same time.

STEP 4: Tell a Trusted Adult

There are many people you can tell if you are being cyberbullied. Talk to the adult you feel most comfortable with. They will be able to help you through this difficult time. Remember you do not have to and you shouldn't have to go through this alone. Open up and you will be provided with the necessary support and care to overcome this.

STEP 5: Block the Bully

Make sure you block the bully from the relevant social networking sites. This will mean that they can't contact you or engage with you. Even if you are only being bullied on one social networking site, it is important to block the cyberbully from all of them. This will also send a message to them that you are not going to accept what they are doing to you and how they are making you feel.

STEP 6: Report Abuse

After the bully is blocked you have to report the person and the messages you have been receiving to the relevant social networking site. They will investigate what has been happening and then take relevant action against the cyberbully.

STEP 7: Confront the Bully

If the bully is someone you know from your school, club, team or through mutual friends, it might be a good idea to confront them. Some cyberbullies aren't aware of what they are doing and how it is making you feel. Don't presume that they know. Ask them to stop what they are doing to you.

STEP 8: Bring it Further

If you have followed steps 1-7 and the bullying has continued or if the messages you have been receiving are posing a real and current threat to your safety, it is time to do something else about it. You may need to contact the school, club or the police. Don't hesitate to take further action.

STEP 9: Change Privacy Settings

Because you have been a victim of cyberbullying, it means the privacy settings on your social networking accounts are not as secure as they should be. Make sure you change them so that only your friends can see your profile and everything you do.

STEP 10: Review Friends

Once you have reviewed your privacy settings it's important to filter through your friends and remove any that you don't know, haven't met or don't like. This will protect you from another incident like this happening again. In the future do not accept friend requests from people you don't know or haven't met in person.

It's very important to deal with cyberbullying. Do not ignore it, or the problem will just get worse. Don't be afraid to speak up to stamp it out.

08 Mar 2015

How to be a Good Digital Citizen

1277

This article provides you with valuable tips on how to be a good digital citizen - how to manage your online reputation, how to be a cyber buddy and how to keep up to date with changes in privacy settings online.