

The Mease Valley Article

By Aston and Isaac (Year 5)

Moving on from a year of ups and downs, we have made a great start to a new school year at The Howard Primary School. The school has been filled with a buzz for learning now that we are all back together and we have thoroughly enjoyed it.

In Class 3, the children have been learning a whole range of subjects which they found greatly interesting. Climate change has been the main focus of the learning and the children wrote persuasive writing to encourage people to make an effort to help the cause. Over this half term, they will learn more about orienteering.

In Class 2, the children have been investigating a book named Leon and the Place Between (a portal story) that they found extremely gripping. In their Music lessons, they are learning to play the ukulele - a small instrument that has a resemblance of a guitar. They are investigating invertebrates and their habitats which they are finding interesting.

In Class 1, the children have been exploring life under the sea in their Science lessons. They have learnt all about marine animals and what they look like. In English, they have enjoyed reading the book Dear Zoo by Rod Campbell. We are all looking forward to seeing their work at the term progresses. Reception have made a great start – well done!
