Impact of activity

Governors looked at the wider curriculum to ensure subjects were covered to a greater depth without duplication across the year groups.	Governors now have better understanding of how the subjects are taught in History, Geography and Religious Education. This enables governors to effectively monitor these subjects.
Governors looked at the new school assessment system.	This gave governors an understanding of the new tracking system and how this monitors pupil data.
Governors reviewed the current school budget and the future funding of the school over the next five years.	Governors reviewed the charges made for the after school club as part of the review.
