About the event

In an ever-changing job market, it's essential that we work together to develop strategies that equip young people with the skills, confidence, and opportunities they need to thrive. This one-day event will focus on innovation, collaboration, and creating opportunities to improve youth employment prospects.

Who should attend?

- Education professionals: school leaders, teachers, career advisors, and training providers.
- Employers and businesses: companies operating in the boroughs and beyond in London, looking to engage with young talent.
- Local authorities and stakeholders focused on youth employment and skills development.
- Funders, think tanks and voluntary sector organisations working to support young people.

What to expect?

- Engaging keynote speakers: hear from experts in education, business, and policy on the future of youth employment.
- Panel discussions and ideation workshops: get ready to explore innovative solutions to bridge the gap between education and employment.
- Exclusive youth panel: hear directly from young people about their experiences, challenges, and aspirations in today's job market. Gain first-hand insights into how we can better support the next generation.
- Networking and collaboration: connect with professionals from different sectors to build valuable partnerships.

Why attend?

- Help shape initiatives that will directly impact young people in our boroughs.
- Share your organisation's knowledge and experience with key stakeholders.
- Gain valuable insights from industry leaders and young voices to make your work more impactful.
- Build connections with partners to drive local change.
