

Endeavour House – Weekly Update

Week ending Friday 5th June 2020

Hello Endeavour!

I hope you enjoyed the half term break and were able to take advantage of the lovely weather we had. I also hope you and your families are continuing to keep yourselves safe and well. I know some of the restrictions are slowly being lifted but we must remember to stick to the guidelines to protect ourselves and our loved ones.

Thank you to everyone that sent in either a video or picture to contribute to the Endeavour lockdown video. It was great to see some of your faces and the different things you have all been up to. Miss Franklin has done a tremendous job in editing the video to the song choice of 'Blinding Lights' by The Weekend. I believe we are just waiting for a couple more houses to complete and we hope to release these after the weekend. Keep an eye out on Mayfield's Facebook page!

During the half term break I have made the most of the weather by getting out the house by going on plenty of walks and runs. I think I managed to play golf every day and the good news is that I am slowly improving. 😊 During the week was also my third wedding anniversary, so my wife and I were able to visit Whitchurch (near Andover) where we got married. We managed to find some lovely walks and treated ourselves to a Tesco's meal deal for lunch, as this was the only place open for food! Again, the weather was fantastic, so we made the most of it and enjoyed each other's company.

That's all from me this week. Please keep checking your emails frequently and respond to your tutors by marking the 'read receipt'.

Stay safe,

Mr Campbell (campbellj@mayfield.portsmouth.sch.uk)
