

Intrepid House – Weekly Update

Week ending Friday ^{1st} April 2020

Hi Intrepid,

How are you all? It's been lovely to speak to so many of you either over the phone or email. Please keep in contact with me, or your tutors, so we know how you are, we miss you! Also, I would still love to see some examples of some of the great work you have been doing. Perhaps you have written an interesting story or essay? Perhaps you have been painting, designing or creating something? Maybe you have been spending time with family members doing something fun? Please check you have permission from someone at home and send me some photos of it.

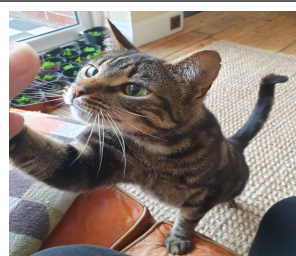

The Intrepid team have been busy again. Mrs Rogers has been training her cat Henry by teaching him a few new tricks, Mr Reid has been home schooling and enjoying family walks and I have been trying to follow Mr Clark-Lyons' good example of getting out walking or running and taking some nice photos as I go.

We have an important date coming up that we would like to spend a little time reflecting on this week. The 8th of May is the 75th anniversary of VE (Victory Europe) Day. This day marks the end of the World War Two conflict in Europe after the Nazis surrendered to Allied Forces. There are some special activities as part of the History work this week but it would be great if you could all spend a little bit of time finding out more about this significant date. There will be lots of programmes on TV about it, or you could research using the internet if you have access. Why not recreate a 1940s street party at home to celebrate?

As always, please, please, please stay safe and follow Government guidelines on staying home. We all can't wait to see you but for now we need to make sure we look after each other and our families. If you need my help for anything, please email me and I will be happy to help.
