GOVERNMENT REGULATION

The Welfare of Animals \(Slaughter or Killing\) Regulations 1995 state that all animals slaughtered in the UK should be fully stunned to the point of insensibility before slaughter and until death. A dispensation exists in the legislation for animals slaughtered for Halal and Kosher meat which states that these animals are not required to be stunned. Schedule 12 Part 1 Section 2 of the legislation allows that animals need not be stunned if it is for the food of Muslims.
