How to respect my ethnic name.

How to help

@AnpuLondon

1

Repeat their name after they introduce themselves

When you don't repeat their name, it can be quite frustrating because we would like reassurance that you've heard and can say it correctly.

2

Reassure them

"I really want to make sure I say your name correctly, can you teach me?"

3

Emails + Business

Incorrect names on a legal document is time consuming to correct for the person. This distracts from more important tasks. Double check the name when writing an email.

How to help

@AnpuLondon

4

Dating

Help your loved one out by teaching your friends and family the pronunciation in advance to avoid any awkward encounters.

5

Call others out

If you hear someone's name being said wrong and they're not in the room, then please do correct them.

6

'Forgive me, could you remind me...'

Politely ask for a reminder. Look, I understand. I'm awful with everyone's names too to be honest because I'm far too nervous about meeting someone new and I don't hear their name, let alone how to pronounce it.

Here's a good tip: jot down the pronunciation in your notepad in a way that you will remember!

Blackpool Sexual Health Services

You cannot just walk into Connect or Sexual Health Services at the moment

You have to have an appointment and wear your face covering.

You need to call 0300 1234 154 to book a telephone consultation.

The nurse will call you back to discuss your needs.
