Individual Liberty

We all have the right to live somewhere safe. We can choose to help refugees, who have had to leave their country, homes and lives behind them.

As people in Afghanistan are now under Taliban leadership following the collapse of the country's government, the UK has introduced a resettlement scheme for Afghan refugees.

The people in Afghanistan are now under Taliban leadership, following the collapse of the country's government. The UK have introduced a new resettlement scheme for Afghan refugees, aimed at helping those most in need. The new scheme is offering up to 20,000 Afghans a route to set up home in the UK over the next few years. The UN refugee agency estimates that about 400,000 Afghans have been internally displaced due to fighting this year. The UN estimates that 80% of displaced people fleeing the Taliban in Afghanistan are women and girls.

As people in Afghanistan are now under Taliban leadership following the collapse of the country's government, the UK has introduced a resettlement scheme for Afghan refugees. How would you feel if you were forced out of your own home? Do you agree that countries with stable governments have a duty to take in refugees from war torn or unstable countries? If you do, who should get priority and how should the numbers of accepted refugees be decided? How far do you think that our responsibilities for other people extend? How does that vary when we are talking about friends, family, those from our own country, or those from other countries?
