Mutual Respect and Tolerance

It is important to respect other people's feelings and check if it's OK before we copy someone. Some people may not mind if we copy what they do or say, but others may get upset.

Question: Is it always wrong to copy others?

The retailer Marks and Spencer (M&S) has begun legal action against supermarket Aldi, arguing the supermarket's Cuthbert the Caterpillar cake infringes its Colin the Caterpillar trademark. M&S claim that their similarity leads consumers to believe they are of the same standard and "rides on the coat-tails" of M&S's reputation. M&S wants Aldi to remove the product from sale and agree not to sell anything similar in the future. The retailer has three trademarks relating to Colin, which it believes means Colin has acquired and retains an enhanced distinctive character and reputation.

This week's useful video: www.bbc.co.uk/news/av/business-56768197

Can you write a list of examples of times when you think it is acceptable to copy something/someone and examples for when you think it isn't? Do you think everyone would agree with your list? • As there have been many duplicate caterpillar cakes over the last decade and M&S have just decided to take legal action against just one of the retailers now, there is some speculation that this may be a publicity stunt between the retailers. Do you agree? Are you surprised at the amount of attention and media coverage that has been given to this story?
