Mutual Respect

We can choose to volunteer or raise funds. This might be at our school or in the community. Volunteering can benefit others and can also make us happy.

Story: The Royal Voluntary Service has recently marked one year since the NHS Volunteer Responder scheme began.

Question: Should everyone volunteer in their spare time?

The Royal Voluntary Service (RVS) has recently marked one year since the NHS Volunteer Responders scheme launched. More than 1 million volunteers signed up, when the public were encouraged to help the health services as it dealt with the increased demand due to the pandemic. The Queen, 94, has been patron of the RVS for almost 70 years and Camilla, the Duchess of Cornwall is the current president. Both joined an online engagement to thank some of the volunteers for their great work during the past year. More than 1.6 million tasks have been carried out by NHS Volunteer Responders through an app called GoodSAM.

This week's useful video: <https://yhoo.it/3d3ufBP>

One of the callers who took part in the video call with the Queen and the Duchess of Cornwall was retired police officer Tracy Clarke, who spoke about her work with the RVS Gateshead Home Library Service. She told them that the delivery of books had become a lifeline during the pandemic for those who loved reading. If you could have the time and complete freedom to choose to volunteer to support a cause that matters to you, what would you choose to do and why? What impact would your role have?

Do you think it's more important to show thanks to volunteers for doing a job than to someone who is being paid to work? Explain your response.

Some people choose not to or are unable to volunteer. Think about some of the reasons why not everyone is in a position to volunteer.
