| | Arachne: |
|----------------------|--|
| | Ready/Steady: Arachne's weavings were also gorgeous and perfectly constructed. Her cloths were also images of the gods, but they portrayed them as angry and foolish. |
| | Go: Arachne took her skeins of finest silk and began to weave. And she wove a web of marvellous beauty, so thin and light that it would float in the air, and yet so strong that it could hold a lion in its meshes; and the threads of warp and woof were of many colours, so beautifully arranged and mingled one with another that all who saw were filled with delight. |
| | Athene: |
| | Ready/Steady: 'Athena wove glorious pictures of the gods and goddesses performing kind and heroic deeds. They were the most beautiful images the mere mortals had ever seen.' |
| | Go: Then Athena began to weave. And she took of the sunbeams that gilded the mountain top, and of the snowy fleece of the summer clouds, and of the blue ether of the summer sky, and of the bright green of the summer fields, and of the royal purple of the autumn woods, — and what do you suppose she wove? |
| | The web which she wove was full of enchanting pictures of flowers and gardens, and of castles and towers, and of mountain heights, and of men and beasts, and of giants and dwarfs, and of the mighty beings who dwell in the clouds with Zeus. And those who looked upon it were so filled with wonder and delight, that they forgot all about the beautiful web which Arachne had woven. And Arachne herself was ashamed and afraid when she saw it; and she hid her face in her hands and wept. |
