- How are we meant to pick options when we have no idea of target grades?

Response from school: Even though we don't communicate targets with pupils in Key Stage 3, we believe that pupils should choose options which they enjoy and which they believe they will achieve well in. A target is something to aim for, but there is no guarantee of success. Success comes primarily from effort; and if a pupil enjoys the subject, they are more likely to put the effort into their studies.
