The Prevent strategy

Seabridge Primary School

What is the Prevent strategy?

Prevent is a government strategy designed to stop people becoming terrorists or supporting terrorist or extremist causes.

The Prevent strategy covers all types of terrorism and extremism, including political and religious extremism, and is in no way limited to a single belief system.

How does the Prevent strategy apply to schools?

All schools (as well as other organisations) have a duty to safeguard children from radicalisation and extremism.

This means schools have a responsibility to protect children from extremist and violent views, in the same way we protect them from drugs or gang violence.

Importantly, schools can provide a safe place for pupils to discuss these issues so that they better understand how to protect themselves.

What does this mean in practice?

Different schools will carry out the Prevent duty in different ways, depending on the age of the children and the needs of the community.

Many of the things we already do in school to help children become positive, happy members of society also contribute to the Prevent strategy.

At Seabridge Primary we do this in a variety of ways, including:

- Exploring other cultures and religions and promoting diversity;
- Challenging prejudices and racist comments;
- Developing critical thinking skills and a strong, positive self-identity;
- Promoting the spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils, as well as British values such as democracy;
- Protecting children from the risk of radicalisation, such as using filters on the internet or vetting visitors who come into school;
- Going beyond 'tolerating' differences, but rather celebrating that we are all wonderfully different.

Frequently Asked Questions

How does Prevent relate to British values?

Schools have been required to promote British values since 2014, and this will continue to be part of the response to the Prevent strategy.

British values include:

- Democracy
- The rule of law
- Individual liberty and mutual respect
- Tolerance of different faiths and beliefs

Isn't my child too young to learn about extremism?

The Prevent strategy is not just about discussing extremism itself, which may not be appropriate for younger children. It is also about teaching children values such as tolerance and mutual respect, in order that we all learn to respect and value one another's qualities and difference.

We make sure any discussions are suitable for the age and maturity of the children involved.

Is extremism really a risk in our area?

Extremism can take many forms, including political, religious and ideological extremism. Some of these may be a bigger threat in our area than others and it is recognised that extremism can take many forms. Examples provided in local authority training literature reference Far Right, Neo Nazi, White Supremacist, Al Qaeda ideologies, Irish Nationalist and Loyalist paramilitary groups, and Animal Rights movements, to demonstrate the wide-ranging forms to be mindful of.

The intention is to give children the skills to protect them from any extremist views they may encounter, now or later in their lives.

We work closely with our PCSOs to ensure we are aware of any issues in our locality.
