'Where love is, God is there.'

In today's gospel, we can see from the Jewish leaders' cynical reaction to Jesus that they had their own agenda and consequently they failed to experience the Spirit at work in Jesus. 'Jesus didn't follow the prescribed order. He wasn't subservient to the system. And that didn't sit well with them because they had taken charge of the Sabbath and they thought that that put them in charge of humanity.' [1] 'They could not deny the good that Jesus did, but in order to cling to their own fixed position they could only reinterpret it, saying that it was a trick of the devil.' [2]

By refusing to be open to the presence of God's Spirit, the Scribes punished themselves, imprisoned by their adherence to their systems and structures. 'Yet for Jesus, all is forgivable. Forgiveness is something much more than escaping punishment or responsibility for a misdeed. Forgiveness means freedom, restoration, transformation, renewal and healing. And there is nothing outside of it. There is no one and nothing outside of the transforming, renewing, resurrection power of the Divine.' [1] Jesus always stands before us as the image of unity, wholeness, integration. The road back to wholeness involves openness and humility. It is a journey that does not involve positions of guaranteed privilege. Even the blood relatives of Jesus have no special standing in the kingdom. To belong to Jesus is equally open to all.' [2]

Today we are invited to find ways which will enable us to experience the presence of God 'who comes to us disguised as our lives.' [3] 'Our task is to find that which moves us to love and to give ourselves to it in love.' [4]

'Where love is, God is there.' [5]

New Lectionary

There will be a new translation of the Lectionary in use from Advent this year. All parishes have to move from the Jerusalem Bible translation (with psalms from the Grail) to the English Standard Version: Catholic Edition (ESV-CE) of the Bible and the Abbey Psalter.

Just to be clear, the liturgical books in use in Church are the Missal, which contains the prayers for every Mass, and the Lectionary, which contains the Scripture Readings. If you have your own Missal this will contain both the prayers and the Scripture Readings but these Readings will no longer be the ones in use after the first Sunday of Advent. We are not sure if we will still be able to print the Readings on the back of the Newsletter as we do currently. We need copyright permission.
