Irreversible change

A reversible change is a change that can be reversed. Examples of reversible changes include melting, freezing, and boiling. An irreversible change is a change that cannot be reversed. Examples of irreversible changes include burning, cooking, and rusting.

Reversible Changes

Water  $\xrightarrow[\text{Heating Melting}]{\text{Freezing Cooling}}$  Ice

When we put some water in the freezer of a refrigerator it will turn into ice. If we then warm the ice it melts and turns back into water.
