Reversible and Irreversible changes are?

A reversible change is a change that can be reversed. For example, when ice is melted, you can collect the water, let it freeze, and it will go back to its original state.

An irreversible change is a change that cannot be reversed. For example, when you burn a piece of paper, it turns into ash and smoke, and you cannot get the paper back.

Examples:

- Reversible: Melting ice, dissolving salt in water, boiling water.
- Irreversible: Burning paper, cooking an egg, rusting of iron.
