PERSUADING MRS HAM TO BUY FAIR TRADE HOT CHOCOLATE FOR WORLD BOOK DAY

Dear Mrs Ham

I am writing to you because it is World Book Day soon and we would really, really like to drink some Fair Trade hot chocolate whilst wearing our fancy dress costumes and reading our favourite books. I will tell you why I think you should allow us to have this in my persuasive letter.

Firstly, it is very important to use Fair Trade hot chocolate as it will really help the cocoa bean farmers sell their products which will help them make more money and help them get out of poverty. This will consequently improve their standard of living and everybody deserves a chance at improving themselves and by allowing us to drink Fair Trade hot chocolate you will be directly helping thousands of cocoa bean farmers.

Furthermore, by allowing us to have Fair Trade hot chocolate and helping the farmers, this will in turn allow the farmers to look after their children better which will make the children feel safe and happy instead of wondering where their next meal was coming from. Children should never have to worry about this and they should be allowed to enjoy being children and if we buy lots of fair trade hot chocolate to drink we will be getting rid of this worry.

Moreover, letting us have the fairtrade hot chocolate will allow the farmers to be paid fairly and be able to afford to give their children a better education by sending them to school. Consequently it is really important children get to go to school because they need to learn and get qualifications so that they can get a job, as if not the cycle of poverty continues. By making sure they get an education we can break the cycle and make the future better.

In conclusion, I strongly believe buying Fair Trade hot chocolate for all the pupils in St Barnabas will have a big impact lots of peoples lives, and will encourage pupils and their families to use more Fair Trade products in the future. I hope you agree with this and can understand my reasons.

Yours Sincerely,
Lucas [redacted] 14

To Dear Mrs Ham,

I am writing this letter to you so you can hopefully buy everyone some lovely fairtrade hot chocolate to enjoy on World Book Day.

Firstly, buying fairtrade means that cocoa farmers and workers get paid a fair price. Consequently, they can afford good to feed their family. Don't you think that people deserve good to eat? They shouldn't starve.

Furthermore, when you buy fairtrade, this means that many workers are safer and their chances of disease will go down. Do you know how many people are suffering from long, long hours?

You are giving workers and farmers a better price for the many hours that they work, and making them work in a safer environment.

Finally, fairtrade supports farmers that grow trees, with this we can live a healthier, cleaner world, with more trees to help us breathe.

I hope this letter has convinced you to buy some fairtrade hot chocolate for us all to enjoy.

From,
a very hopeful Grace.

Dear Mrs Ham,

I am writing this to say please can we have fairtrade hot chocolate on world book day. Please read this to see why fairtrade hot chocolate is better than normal hot chocolate.

Firstly, I believe that the farmers are paid a fair amount of money. As a result, they will be able to have money to live and afford more things and afford to grow more crops. Don't you think people should be able to buy more essentials?

What's more, fairtrade workers get extra money to use on making the community better so they will be able to make schools and hospitals better and more hygienic. Wouldn't you like children to have a better education, and to be more clean?

Furthermore, fairtrade farmers help to make the environment better by making reforestation happen and they use less chemicals. Consequently, we will be able to breath fresh, clean air and have more oxygen.

In conclusion, I believe that buying fairtrade hot chocolate will make a big difference to the world, and will be much better than buying non-fairtrade hot chocolate. I hope that I have convinced you to buy fairtrade hot chocolate on world book day for the school to enjoy!

Dear Mrs Ham

I am writing this letter to convince you to buy fairtrade hot chocolate for the whole school on World Book Day.

Firstly, you should buy fairtrade because it means cocoa farmers will be paid fairly. Therefore, they can afford food and school. Do you want to put a smile on a kid's face?

Furthermore, you should buy fairtrade because the farmers are paid a fair price. As a result, farmers are less likely to get poorly. Do you want a poor farmer to get sick?

Dear Mrs Ham

I am writing to you today to try to persuade you to buy Fairtrade hot chocolate for World Book Day instead of non-Fairtrade hot chocolate. Please take some time to read my letter carefully. I hope after reading it you will buy us Fairtrade.

Firstly, I think we should buy Fairtrade hot chocolate because the farmers that grow the cocoa bean to make hot chocolate get paid a fair price. Consequently this means that they can feed their families so that they wont become ill. How important do you think it is to feed their families?

Furthermore, if you buy Fair trade hot chocolate the communities get more money. With this money they can build water pumps near their homes. As a result they dont have to walk miles away from their homes just to get water.

Additionally, the communities are also able to build hospitals with the money they get. Whats more they are able to keep themselves and their families healthy. Don't you agree that everyone should have medication to get better?

Lastly, I really believe that we should buy Fairtrade because we are helping the farmers and their families to have a better life. I hope I have been able to convince you to buy Fairtrade hot chocolate!
