What I like about St. Bartholomew's as a church school is:

The strong educational features

I like St Bartholomew's as a church school, because everyone is welcome

Friendly helpful staff

The teachers are very good, the students are well disciplined and very well mannered.

The total inclusion

That they talk more about God, because the children need to know in their early lives that God is somewhere they can call on at all times

Everything

Every child is treated equally

I like the diversity at St. Bart's.

The level of education invested in the students.

It is a very inclusive school, my daughters have become very confident since joining.
My children's faith is encouraged at all times.
The discipline they teach the children, the effort they put into children's learning, they work well and understand the needs of parents with the extended day.
All the support given.
The diversity and support for working parents
Great school.
The involvement of parents.
All children are encouraged to achieve.
A great stepping stone for my children in their journey in life and their values.
The children learn new things every day.
Everyone is valued equally.
It teaches children about different religions and different beliefs and teaches them to respect them.
Good education for children.
Outstanding,
It is a strong community that supports Christian Values.
It gives an open mind to children about religion.
The school teaches children about morals.
They teach the children to achieve their goals and to believe in faith and respect each other.
It's a strong community that that involves all the children.
