12th February 2021-Home Learners

Returning to School

I know how hard it is trying to educate your children at home and many parents are starting to ask when they can bring their children back to school. Unfortunately, we remain closed to all children apart from those of critical workers and identified families after the half term. The Government plan to make an announcement on the 22nd February regarding the possible reopening of school from the Monday 8th March. It is possible that they may instruct we have a phased reopening over time to different year groups. Once we are able, we will open to all children and we will let you know as soon as plans are confirmed.

In the meantime, if we can offer any help and support please call school.

This Week's Home Stars Are:

The staff who are supporting home learning have identified these children this week who have done amazingly well. We will be send or deliver their certificates. Well done!
